Housing Chief Sees Residency Violation

Says Authority Working With 3 Cities On Issue

By ERIK INGRAM

The executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority yesterday confirmed spreading rumor that his agency is operating in violation of federal antidiscrimination laws.

While he estimated the number of persons adversely affected at "three or four," the Independent-Journal learned today from another source the actual number is nearly 500.

The agency's violation arises from noncompliance with a U.S. District Court ruling, which in April 1970 struck down "durational residency requirements" as discriminatory.

That ruling held it to be a violation of the Constitution to disqualify a low-income person from subsidized housing because he had not lived in a community a certain length of time. Three Marin cities currently have such requirements.

The court rejected the argument that a "durational residence requirement" was necessary to discourage indigent newcomers from inflating the need for public housing.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd acknowledged he has known his agency, in complying with the three cities's residency requirements, has been operating contrary to the law. "We have been working to correct the situation," he said, "but it takes time."

In order for the leased housing program to operate in any city, Shepherd said, it must under federal law have approval from that city.

Three cities — Larkspur, Fairfax and San Rafael — gave the housing authority approval years ago but attached residency requirements to their agreements prior to the court's decision.

San Rafael and Lakspur have a two-year requirement, meaning no person is eligible for subsidized housing unless he has been a resident for two years. They authorized the housing authority to operate in 1968 and 1969 respectively. Fairfax, which signed in 1968, has a one-year requirement.

Two cities — Belvedere and Ross — have no agreement with the housing authority and thus have no leased housing units. The remaining six cities do, but have not attached the illegal requirement.

(The Department of Housing and Urban Development through the leased housing program leases existing privately owned homes and apartments and then sub-leases them to tenants of low income at a rent they can afford.)

Shepherd estimated yesterday three or four persons seeking subsidized housing under the leased housing program have been turned away as ineligible while his staff has been "working behind the scenes" to correct "the situation."

However, Shirley A. Williams, who heads the agency's application office in San Rafael, said the number of persons turned away on account of the residency requirement totals 473 since the ruling.

Housing authority figures show currently it has 52 leases to persons in San Rafael meeting requirements while Larkspur has one and Fairfax 18.

Mrs. Williams said 84 residents of the three cities have been told by the housing authority they were ineligible because they didn't meet residency requirements.

In addition, 389 persons seeking housing have been told they couldn't look in the three cities because they were residents of other communities — hence failed to meet the one and two-year residency requirements.

Shepherd said that removing a residency clause is not simply a matter of approaching the city council and asking it be done.

"We have to work behind the scenes for change," he said, recalling that Fairfax last summer said it would withdraw from the program if its residency requirement were dropped.

During the last 14 months that the ruling has been in effect, Shepherd said, he and his staff have been working to "clean up" the leased housing programs by auditing records and weeding out substandard rental units now on the books.

"We have to have a clean slate before we can approach the (three) cities," he said. "We're making progress."

As to the 14-month delay, he said his audit of the records and "priority" items such as redevelopment in Marin City — in jeopardy of being lost — have demanded most of his time.

Mayor Earl J. O'Grady of Larkspur and Mayor Cornelis Van Vliet of Fairfax differed with Shepherd. Both said they had not been approached to discuss scrapping of the residency requirement.

"We haven't," said O'Grady.

Phone Tap Issue Wins Court Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule next term on whether the government may tap the telephone of anyone it believes to be a threat to national security without obtaining consent from a federal judge.

The test case to be heard next fall or winter involves a mounting dispute over a claim by Attorney General John N. Mitchell that the government's right of self-protection surmounts an individual's right of privacy in security investigations.

Mitchell has assumed authority to approve telephone wiretaps in such instances but in the test case, to be decided by a written opinion, the Justice Department lost on two lower court rulings.

In other actions, the Court:

—Ruled it is not mandatory for states to provide jury trials for juveniles even for offenses which would require a jury for an adult. For the majority, Justice Harry A. Blackmun said such a procedure for juveniles "is the state's privilege and not its obligation."

—Let stand a Georgia election law provision that an independent candidate must obtain signatures of 5 per cent of the electorate to be placed on the ballot.

—Refused to intervene in the perjury conviction of Martin Sweig, former administrative assistant to former House Speaker John W. McCormack. Sweig claimed he was used as a "whipping boy" in the government's influence-peddling case against lobbyist Nathan Voloshen.

—Agreed to review next term a lower court ruling striking down a Georgia law which made abusive language punishable as a breach of the peace.

—Denied a hearing to publisher Ralph Ginzburg who faces a jail sentence for a 1963 obscenity conviction.

The wiretap test case accepted by the Court came from Detroit.

U.S. District Judge Damon J. Keith of Detroit ruled such eavesdropping unconstitutional in the case of Lawrence Plamondon, minister of defense of the White Panther Party. He was upheld April 8, 1971, by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Supreme Court will hear the case next fall or winter and decide it later by written opinion.

Keith ordered the government to hand over its eavesdropping records to Plamondon, accused of conspiring to blow up the Central Intelligence Agency offices at Ann Arbor, Mich., where the party is based. The government admitted that conversations of Plamondon had been overheard by means of a tap approved by Mitchell.

Keith said if the records were not made available the case would have to be dropped.

U.N. Chief Falls Ill At Office

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary General Thant suffered "an indisposition" at his office Saturday and has been indefinitely confined to his home by physicians, it was announced today.

A U.N. spokesman said Thant definitely had not suffered a heart seizure but that the nature of his illness would not be known pending the outcome of medical tests.

Thant, 62, immediately cancelled a trip that was to have taken him to the Soviet Union, Mongolia and Poland, with stops at Ethiopia and Switzerland.

Firebomb Flareup: One Dead

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—A black youth was shot to death by a policeman early today during a flareup of firebombing in the racially-troubled city on the Alabama border.

Police Capt. Bobby Knox said the youth, Willie J. Osborn Jr. of Columbus, was killed after he fled from a car being chased by police and ignored orders to stop.

Knox said Osborn tried to run over two policemen at a roadblock and then jumped from the car with an "object in his hand." An officer fired once at Osborn, then shot twice in the air when the man ran, and then shot him when he would not stop, Knox said.

The detective chief said police had wanted to question Osborn about the armed robbery of a small grocery in which Osborn answered the description of one of the bandits.

The incident occured around 3 a.m. EDT after a rash of firebombing had broken out in Columbus before midnight. Firemen extinguished at least seven arson fires at white-owned stores.

It was the second night and morning of violence stemming from black protests over the firing of seven Negro policemen, who had ripped American flag shoulder patches off their uniforms to emphasize their accusations of racial discrimination on the police force.

Around 500 blacks had marched through downtown Columbus, the "civilian home" of Ft. Benning, Saturday afternoon to demand the rehiring of the black officers. Firebombing and vandalism broke out around midnight Saturday.

The Saturday violence lasted about six hours, until about

Rights Test Set On Report's Ban

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Court of Appeals announced today it would convene a full eight-judge panel Tuesday to consider the constitutional questions raised by the government's attempt to stop the New York Times from publishing a secret Pentagon report on Vietnam.

Chief Judge Henry J. Friendly, who had been expected to convene a three-judge panel to hear the case today, announced instead that the five other judges active in the Second Circuit had asked to participate.

The judge scheduled the hearing for 11 a.m. PDT Tuesday and continued an order restraining the Times from publishing any further information from the Pentagon papers.

In Washington, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell heard two hours of public testimony in a parallel case involving publication of the same documents by the Washington Post. He was expected to render a decision by mid-afternoon.

Dennis J. Doolin, deputy assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, told the court in public session that the Pentagon report tracing U.S. involvement in Vietnam was "top secret sensitive" and related to current U.S. operations in Vietnam.

Doolin testified after Gesell ruled that a group of congressmen supporting the newspapers' right to print the material could not enter the case as "friends of the court."

In New York, Friendly permitted the National Emergency Civil Liberties Committee and the American Civil Liberties Union to submit papers asking to intervene as "friends of the court." He said the court would determine later whether they could enter into oral argument.

Friendly directed attorneys for both the Times and the Justice Department to get material to all the judges as soon as possible.

Sitting with Friendly were Judges Paul R. Hays and J. Joseph Smith who concurred in the adjournment until Tuesday after a short whispered consultation on the bench.

The Times won the first round Saturday when U.S. District Judge Murray I. Gurfein refused to enjoin the newspaper from printing the study.

The government contends publication would endanger the national security while the Times argues it has the right to publish the information under First Amendment guarantees of free speech and press. Both sides were prepared to take the case to the Supreme Court after the Court of Appeals issues its ruling.

Lawyers for both sides prepared secret briefs dealing with "in camera" testimony on matters of national security heard last week in District Court in addition to normal legal briefs which are made public.

In other developments:

—Daniel Ellsberg, the former Pentagon officials said to have leaked the report to the Times and Post, told Newsweek magazine he had tried unsuccessfully to persuade Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign affairs adviser, to read it last September because he believed the Nixon administration was continuing Johnson administration policy. He said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., later refused to accept a copy but that he succeeded in giving Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., another leading dove, "a number of xerox sheets which bore no classification markings."

Sausalito To Seek Arrest Quota Probe

The mayor of Sausalito said today he will request that the Marin County Grand Jury investigate charges of an alleged "quota system" of arrests in the Sausalito Police Department.

Mayor Alexander R. Imlay said that although he is "convinced these charges are wholly unfounded," a grand jury investigation "would clear the air and dispel any lingering doubts about our police department."

Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright said he would welcome a grand jury investigation because the police department has nothing to hide.

In recent weeks a newspaper article and testimony in the trial of state Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett, have alleged that Sausalito policemen must make a certain number of arrests in order to be eligible for promotion and pay increases. Bennett, arrested in Sausalito in April and charged with driving under the influence of liquor was found guilty of the charges in a jury trial Thursday, but Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman overturned the jury's verdict and acquitted the Kentfield man.

During the trial, Officer Gary E. Verdi of the Sausalito Police Department testified that, while there is no written directive nor set number of required arrests in the department, an unofficial quota of sorts exists because officers must perform at a level equal to other officers, including the making of arrests. Verdi said he was denied a raise because of a monthly evaluation system which includes arrests made and was told by his sergeant that he tended to "rationalize away arrests."

In a letter to Grand Jury Foreman Milen C. Dempster, Imlay said the repetition of the "quota system" charges in the press may have raised doubts about the Sausalito department in the minds of citizens.

"A mere statement from the mayor, the city council or the police chief would not dispel these doubts," Imlay said to explain why he was asking for the probe. Saying he would ask the jury to make the Sausalito investigation "a priority item" and begin as soon as possible, the mayor said the city's staff would be ready to assist the jury.

Foreman Dempster told the Independent-Journal he will bring the request to the attention of the jury's justice committee which will meet Wednesday. He did not know when such an investigation could begin, should the jury decide to undertake it.

Chief Says Grass Fires Being Set

San Rafael firemen believe the same person is responsible for setting numerous grass fires in the west hills of San Rafael.

Vance Trivett, fire chief, reported about 12 fires in the area since June 1. There were two fires off Indian Trail road during the weekend.

Trivett said "Fires just don't happen; somebody's got to be there." He added that he suspects the same person or persons are responsible for the fires.

A similiar situation occurred last summer when there were 24 separate grass fires in the hills between June 3 and September 16.

The streets most frequently hit are Fifth, Chestnut and Forbes avenues, Windsor Circle, Humboldt and California streets, and Ridgewood and Los Altos drives.

Aftershock Jolt Hits Los Angeles

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology here said a tremor registering 3.9 on the open-ended Richter scate was recorded at 9:01 a.m. It was the largest aftershock since April 25, officials said.

The temblor was centered near Newhall, but was felt strongly as far away as West Los Angeles.

FBI Budget Zips Past House Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Appropriations Committee, refusing to be swayed by mounting criticism of the FBI, today issued its annual recommendation that the bureau be granted all the money it requested.

The $334.4 million earmarked for the FBI was contained in a $4 billion measure to provide operating funds during the 12 months starting July 1 for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments, the Judiciary and an assortment of related agencies.

Equaling the FBI was the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, for which the committee recommended the full $698.9 million requested. The money goes to help states improve their law enforcement and correctional abilities.

Faring almost as well was the government's program of subsidizing the maritime industry. The panel voted $524.5 million, only $1,250,000 below what had been asked.

Not everyone else was as fortunate, with total reductions from the requests amounting to $168 million.

Among those hardest hit was the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), the agency charged with enforcing federal laws barring job discrimination based on race, national origin or sex. EEOC was granted $22 million by the committee, $5.8 million more than it received last year but $5.6 million —or 20 per cent — below what was sought.

Knocked completely out of the bill was the $8.7 million requested as the U.S. contribution to the International Labor Organization, the $22,000 needed to cover a rent hike at the Waldorf Astoria residence of the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and the $11,000 asked by the Supreme Court to rent automobiles for the associate justices and to provide an entertainment allowance for the chief justice.

When it came to the FBI, the committee recommended the full budget request of $334,486,000, including approximately $30,000 to buy Director J. Edgar Hoover a new armored limousine.

The total figure represented an increase of $39.9 million over the previous year and the panel said in an accompanying report that the extra money would pay for the hiring of an additional 2,251 employees, stepped up fingerprint activity, a computerized criminal history system and the start on staffing the new FBI academy at Quantico, Va.

The net result, said the committee, will be to substantiatly increase the bureau's "capacity to handle increasing investigative workloads, particularly in the areas of general crime, organized crime and internal security."

GI Heroin Use Told By Doctor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Heroin used by GI's in Vietnam is about 95 per cent pure and servicemen "usually snort it like snuff or smoke it mixed with tobacco," an army doctor says.

Major Eric Nelson of Letterman General Hospital said heroin bought in the United States is only five per cent pure.

The 31-year-old psychiatrist Sunday made public his conclusions on experience gained in the war zone and during interviews with more than 1,000 servicemen returning from Vietnam.

A third of the men interviewed reported using heroin or other hard drugs. One third used only alcohol and another third used alcohol and marijuana, he said.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Heart Attack Aid

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—President Nixon's proposal to spend $100 million to work for the conquest of cancer was topped Monday by a proposal to use $660 million to make life-prolonging surgery available to all heart attack victims.

Dr. Eliot Corday, the noted Los Angeles heart scientist, conditioned his proposal upon "breakthrough" surgical techniques coming into widespread use that could reinvigorate diseased hearts indefinitely. He spoke at a scientific session of the American Medical Association convention.

The techniques center on restoring blood supply to a heart muscle with a blocked artery by grafting a vein between the main outflow heart artery, the aorta, and the muscle. Some 20,000 of these operations have been performed in the last year, he said, and "there are long waiting lists of these fragile patients" because there are not nearly enough trained surgeons.

Market Climax

LUXEMBOURG (UPI)—The major terms for Britain's entry into the European Common Market will be settled by Wednesday morning, according to British officials arriving for the crucial talks opening today.

If the negotiations are successful, Britain's European affairs minister, Geoffrey Rippon, says he will celebrate with a cup of tea. He complained a month ago during a stalemate in negotiations that all Britain was offered was "tea and sympathy."

Britain is negotiating for the third time to join the booming six-nation trading group it rejected when first talks began between France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg in 1955.

Refugee Plight

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said her government will not allow an estimated 6 million East Pakistan war refugees to remain permanently in India, press reports said today.

The reports, from news agencies and English language newspapers, quoted Mrs. Gandhi as telling a news conference at Srinagar in the northern state of Kashmir Sunday that the refugees could not remain in India permanently.

"At the moment we will watch the situation," Mrs. Gandhi said when asked what moves government planned to ensure the return of the refugees. "But I am certain about one thing, that we are not going to allow them to remain in this country."

Red Space Record

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Salyut orbital station today closed in on the 18-day spaceflight record.

The Soyuz 11 Sunday eclipsed the American endurance record set by Gemini 7 in 1965 of just under 14 days.

If all goes well, early Thursday morning, the cosmonauts will beat the 18-day record set by Soyuz 9 cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastianov on June 19, 1970.

Cosmonauts Georgi Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev boarded Salyut June 7 after rocketing into orbit a day earlier aboard the transport spacecraft Soyuz 11.

Just after midnight Sunday they bettered the Gemini 7 record of Frank Borman and James Lovell, who were in space for 13 days, 18 hours and 35 minutes.

Italy's Controversy

ROME (UPI)—Divorce Italian style may turn out to be a short-lived thing.

On Dec. 18 the first divorce law in modern Italy took effect. Today, divorce supporters said the beginning of the end already may be in sight.

The cause of their gloom lies in 301 cardboard boxes, filled with 1,370,134 notarized signatures lodged with the Rome Chancery Court in support of a demand for a referendum on whether to abolish divorce.

"I must admit frankly that the anti-divorce people have the real possibility of winning at the last moment a battle that has lasted for years, even if only by a small margin," said Socialist deputy Loris Fortuna, one of the law's two sponsors.

Israel-Soviet Tie?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a group of visiting Americans Sunday night he would not be surprised if the Soviet Union made a bid in the near future to renew diplomatic relations with Israel, the Israeli news agency ITIM reported today.

The Russians severed relations with Israel during the 1967 Six Day War and recently signed a 15-year treaty of alliance and friendship with Egypt.

Eban, speaking to a group of 40 leaders of American conservative Jewish congregations now visiting Israel, said "Israel is ready for any such proposal and is willing to have these relations take any form the Russians suggest."

"A state of isolation is no more likely to be permanent than a state of close friendship between the countries," Ebar said in his Jerusalem statement.

Two Arrested In Bogus Currency

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Authorities seized counterfeit currency with a face value of $2.5 million during the weekend, bringing the face-value of phony money confiscated in Los Angeles this year to nearly $10 million — half the national amount.

Police found $46,000 in bogus $20 bills in a car stopped Saturday for a routine traffic violation. Officers arrested Alvin Smith, 50, and Joe R. Gindratt, 24, both of Los Angeles.

Johnson Spy Plan Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said the "highest" civilian authorites in the Johnson administration directed the Army to spy on Americans, according to congressional testimony released today.

"The military is sometimes blamed for this operation," Laird said March 4 in a closed session of the House defense appropriations subcommittee. "But this operation was completely known to the highest authorities within our government."

The spy activities, which included keeping portfolios on liberal political candidates as well as antiwar and civil rights activists, were ordered stopped last March 1, Laird said.

Former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford announced creation of a riot-control command at the Pentagon April 26, 1968. He said it would oversee federal toops sent to cities during riots and would provide "prompt and effective supplementary law enforcement assistance."

But the classified directive circulated by the Pentagon five days after the announcement, indicates the center was designed to perform more duties than Clark named. The 31-page directive was unclassified two weeks before Laird appeared before the subcommittee, and a copy was printed with its testimony.

It describes the "mission" of the directorate of military support as:

"To procure, evaluate, interpret, and disseminate as expeditiously as possible information and intelligence relating to any actual, potential or planned demonstrations or other activities related to civil disturbances within the continental United States (CONUS) which threaten civil order of military security."

The directive also outlines "pre-disturbance activities" that should be observed by the surveillance agency. These include "identity of newspapers, radio or television stations, and prominent persons who are friendly with the leaders of the disturbance and are sympathetic with their plans. Will any be present? Participating? How?"

Among other indicators of potential civil violence listed in the directive are:

—Presence of militant agitators.

—Sharp increase in absentee rate of discontented minority groups.

—Increase in activity, such as rabble rousing meetings and fiery agitation speeches.

B52s Strike To Counter Red Shelling Near DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—U. S. B52 bombers dropped more than 500 tons of explosives today in their ninth consecutive day of raids near the demilitarized zone (DMZ) in South Vietnam. Communist troops failed in an attempt to overrun a South Vietnamese combat base in that area Sunday night.

Military spokesmen said the B52s hit suspected Communist positions in the mountainous regions just below the DMZ.

Five South Vietnamese marines were killed and 15 wounded Sunday in a battle with Communist forces 12 miles south of the DMZ, military sources said.

The U.S. command reported 2,300 more American servicemen were withdrawn from Vietnam last week, lowering troop strength to 244,900. The withjrawal figure was the lowest for a week since mid-February and was less than half the 4,885 per week that had been the average since the seventh phase of the withdrawal program began.

In a delayed report, the command said an Air Force A1 Skyraider fighter was shot down over the Plain of Jars in Laos Friday, killing one American. It was the 64th U. S. plane reported destroyed in combat over Laos since statistics first were issued March 10, 1970.

The command also reported an Army OH6 light observation helicopter was shot down Sunday 115 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta, with one crewman wounded.

Terrorists kept up pressure in Saigon in reply to Saturday's big Armed Forces Day parade. Two men on a motorcycle threw a fragmentation grenade at the home of a government minister Sunday night in one of four weekend attacks by terrorists in the capital, but there were no injuries.

Field reports said an estimated 350 rounds of mortar and recoilless rifle fire hit Firebase Fuller five miles south of the DMZ before the North Vietnamese regulars made their attack. The Communists were unable to penetrate the base's barbed wire perimeter.

Two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and nine wounded in the fighting but none of the eight American soldiers at the base were hurt, the reports said. U.S. and South Vietnamese artillery supported the defenders from nearby bases during the 90-minute battle.

The firebase was one of a half dozen along the DMZ shelled by the Communists during the weekend. The Communists also bombarded the northern cities of Hue, Quand Ngai and Pleiku and fired mortars into Tra On and Cau Ke, two district towns south of Saigon, killing five South Vietnamese and wounding at least 23 in the various attacks.

Kent Investigative Jury Lambasted

RAVENNA, Ohio (UPI)—Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark says a special grand jury that investigated last year's disturbances at Kent State University contributed to a "breakdown of justice."

Four students were shot to death by National Guard troops May 4, 1970, during a demonstration protesting the expansion of the Indochina War.

Clark appeared at a pre-trial hearing Saturday on a motion to dismiss charges of second-degree riot against Craig Morgan, former Kent State student body president. Clark asked Portage county Common Pleas Court Judge Edwin Jones to quash all 26 indictments returned by the grand jury in connection with the disturbances. Jones took the motions under advisement.

Clark said the statutes under which the riot indictments were handed down were "vague" and unconstitutional. He also criticized the fact that no students were included on the grand jury.

"A grand jury was empaneled at a time of great emotion and prejudice and a statute was applied, so vague it lends itself to prejudice," Clark said. "These combined create a total breakdown of the systems applied in this case."

The grand jury report, which a federal judge ordered destroyed, blamed the disturbances on the university administration's "permissiveness," but allowed the indictments to stand.

Former Gov. James A. Rhodes and former state Adjutant General S.T. Del Corso, head of the Ohio National Guard at the time of the shootings, were subpoenaed to appear at the Saturday hearing.

Del Corso showed up, but did not testify. Rhodes did not appear.

Motions to dismiss charges against three other students charged with second-degree riot were also filed.

San Rafael To Ask For Bids On Sewerage

The San Rafael City Council will call for bids for a major sewerage improvement project at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in the city hall.

Public Works Director Norris Rawles said that the project, estimated to cost $750,000, will involve tearing up streets in several areas of the city.

The new system when installed, however, will prevent the "popping manhole covers" which occur during storms. The project is being funded with money approved at an April election as well as federal funds.

Work is expected to begin in August.

'Predatory Banking' Hit By Nader Aides' Report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ralph Nader says banks in the United States, largely because of secretive practices, are beyond government regulation.

"Secrecy breeds ignorance, disinterest and despair on the part of those citizens who are adversely affected from variously abstract levels of abuse by irregular, discriminatory or predatory banking behevior," Nader said Sunday in the introduction of a 547-page study of the First National City Bank (Citibank) of New York.

Citibank, with $26 billion in assets and more than 830 branches in New York and 82 foreign countries, is the second largest bank in the United States. Bank of America with $28 billion in assets ranks first.

The report by a Nader task force headed by David Leinsdorf, a former government antitrust lawyer, alleged that "as far as the regulatory process is concerned, the large banks are, in a word, autonomous."

Walter B. Wriston, chairman of Citibank, said the Nader report would be given "careful consideration."

But Wriston said the "painstakingly detailed," study "is unfortunately based on serious misconceptions about the proper role of the banking system and a frightening cynicism about other peoples' ethics."

RALPH NADER
Takes aim at banks

Leinsdorf said the study concentrated on Citibank because it was the largest in New York and one of the most aggressive of the money market banks. Both he and Nader indicated that much of their criticism applied as well to most of the big "money market banks." Bleinsdorf said Citibank practices an "economic colonialism" by financing many conglomerate mergers.

"As one top officer of a mid-sized Connecticut bank noted, as soon as a national company picks up some local outfit, the money just shoots down to New York,'" the report said.

It cited the acquisition of Monarch Rubber Co., Hartsville, Ohio, by Teledyne, a widely diversified company and a Citibank customer. As soon as the merger was completed, most of Monarch's deposits were moved from a Canton bank to Citibank.

"The profits represented in the form of bank deposits ought to remain available to meet the credit needs of Ohio's economy, not to further increase the economic resources controlled from New York," Leinsdorf said.

Wriston said some of the Nader study was taken "directly" from two surveys commissioned by Citibank to be used for reappraisal of its practices.

The bank executive was critical that "important sections of the (Nader) report cover areas the student investigators never discussed with bank officials during two months of interviews."

Dope Addict Ruled Out In Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Assistant Secretary of the Army John G. Kester said Sunday that heroin addiction in Vietnam would not qualify ex-GI's for veterans disability pensions.

"I don't feel this is a service connected disability," Kester told the National Heroin Symposium at the University of California Medical Center.

His comment was greeted with a roar of protest from social and drug workers.

But Kester said GI's permanent records would not reveal treatment or addiction of heroin.

"I feel it should show up in their records so the poor —— can get a pension," one irate drug worker yelled from the crowd.

Kester said it was not combat or service in the war theater that hooked the men on heroin. He said Army statistics showed heroin use among troops was higher in support units than among combat men in Vietnam.

Kester received hoots when he said Army studies have shown Vietnam addicts "tend to be somewhat below average in intelligence."

"You're a political hack," shouted David Diello, who runs a program in Honolulu for treatment of heroin addicts.

There was a roar of laughter from the crowd when Kester said some Vietnam GI's "do not take much satisfaction in the kind of jobs they have to do."

These servicemen are driven to heroin use by "boredom, peer pressures and curiosity. They are cut off from the normal social constraints so they are willing to try things they wouldn't try at home," Kester said.

Kester, who has been in the Department of Army for 18 months, said a proposal to hold servicemen for 30 days after their discharge date for addiction treatment would allow GI's "to come back to their senses until they see if they want to stay on heroin or get clean."

Kester said servicemen would not be court martialed if they went back on drugs after a 30-day treatment period.

'Easy Climb' On Mountainside Ends In Death Trap For Trio

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—Two men and a 9-year-old boy slipped down a snow-covered mountain during the weekend and drowned in a pond created by melting snow.

The fall touched off a landslide that made in impossible to rescue the trio.

Wayne Creek, 36, Robert H. Deal, 28, and Louis Ybarrondo, 9, all of Idaho Falls, Idaho, were killed in Saturday's accident. Chief Park Ranger Frank Betts said.

Betts said Deal was leading a group of four persons down what is known as the Symme-Spire Couloir when he "lost control of his descent" and fell into a "moat" in the snow created by a 20-foot waterfall.

Despite attempts to warn off other climbers, another climbing party led by Creek came down the mountainside and he also fell into the pool. The young boy, who was in the same party, followed the deadly path made by Creek down the mountainside.

Creek's son, Mike, 12, and Lawrence Ybarrondo, father of the young boy who died, were able to halt their descent in time to save themselves.

Ronald Ottoson, 30, of Minneapolis, Minn., who was among those at the scene, heard cries for help from Creek and the boy and lowered himself into the pit in a rescue effort.

Ottoson discovered the two buried to their necks in snow from an avalanche caused by their falls and he was unable to pull them out.

The snow dammed up water flowing into the pond "and it was only a matter of time until the water was completely over their heads," Betts said.

Another climber who was with Deal, William Radtke, 36, tried unsuccessfully to rescue him. Radtke said when he reached the site, however, Deal was "upside down and jammed between snow and ice on the top and rocks on the bottom."

Betts said the descent actually was not difficult and ordinarily was considered a "routine matter on this mountain. It is a very easy climb."

Another climber, Duncan Will, 22, of Bethesda, Md., fell to his death at the same site June 7. His death was the first mountain climbing fatality in the park since 1966.

Six Tires Blow On Jumbo Jet

TOKYO (UPI)—Six tires on a Northwest Airlines 747 with 219 persons aboard blew during takeoff from Tokyo International Airport Sunday night. The plane skidded off the runway but there were no injuries.

The jumbo jet, Northwest flight 10 to Honolulu and San Francisco, had covered the first 1,500 feet of its takeoff run when six of the 16 tires blew out. An airline spokesmen said "the aircraft was nowhere near its takeoff speed when it skidded and ran off the runway."

He said "the left main landing gear and the tires were damaged." The plane ploughed through the mud onto a parking ramp, where it came to a halt tilted at a 40-degree angle.

Migrant Workers Fund Announced

Gunfire Wounds Three Youths

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Three teen-aged boys were wounded by gunshots Sunday as they were leaving a dance in downtown San Francisco.

Police said the shooting apparently stemmed from a quarrel over a girl.

The victims, Hanward Louie, 17, Henry, 17, and Jonnie Wong, 15, were listed in fair condition at a hospital.

Antipapists Taunt Pope Paul On 'Third Secret Of Fatima'

VATICAN CITY (UPI)— Disciples of a man who calls himself Pope Clement XV knelt on the cobblestones of St. Peter's Square Sunday, chanting and clapping loudly while Pope Paul VI gave his regular weekly blessing.

About 60 of the antipapists, the women wearing white, nunlike habits and the men dressed alike in white jackets and blue trousers, staged the demonstration amid thousands of pilgrims and tourists who had come to see the pontiff.

They knelt around a blue pickup truck on which a life-sized statue of the Virgin of Fatima was placed on a bed of flowers.

They were in full view of the Pope, but it was not possible to know whether he either heard or saw them. He did not interrupt his address.

The antipapists' leader, a defrocked French priest known to the law as Michel Collin and to his followers as Clement XV, was not present. He was deported from Italy in February, 1969, after he tried to set up a rival "Vatican in a Milan apartment with eight "cardinals" and two "Swiss Guards." He has his own "holy See" near Dijon, France.

His supporters chanted "Fatima, Fatima" in reference to their claim that Pope Paul is hiding the so-called third secret of Fatima. This, they believe, foretells the imminent end of the world and was supposedly given to three Portuguese children by the madonna before being sent to the Vatican for sake-keeping.

Residency Rule Violations Told

"They (the housing authority) came before us (city council) sometime last summer saying they were going to supply us with information on it. We haven't seen them since."

Van Vliet said he was shocked that the illegal clause was still in Fairfax's agreement. "That looks like something I'd better get on the agenda," he said. "A residency requirement is sillly in my opinion . . ."

Shepherd, when told of the mayors' statements, modified his "behind the scenes" statement to apply only to San Rafael.

"We are working in progression . . . That is, starting with San Rafael first," he said adding he has requested the matter be considered by the San Rafael City Council.

Meanwhile, San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini confirmed Shepherd's statement.

"I received a letter from Shepherd on Friday," he said, adding it was the first he had heard of the residency requirement matter "in three or four years."

Shepherd, however, maintained he had been working with the city long before Friday. "I've had several meetings with the city manager (James H. McCown)," he said.

Further, a meeting was set between him and Bettini several months ago but the mayor failed to show, he added.

(McCown could not be reached for comment.)

If the communication between the three cities and the housing authority is confusing, also confusing is the communication between the housing authority staff and its board of directors.

Director Norman B. Campbell said "some board member," whom he did not identify, had been working for years with the cities to have the requirement removed.

"We've been trying to woo the communities," he said adding "you can't force the situation on them. Part of the problem is the issues are foggy . . ."

Director James G. McDonald said he was under the impression that housing authority staff was working with city agencies.

"Wally (Shepherd) told us he had been in contact with several cities throughout the country," he said.

(Other directors could not be reached for comment.)

State Court Upheld On Nonsupport Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today let stand a California decision that it is unconstitutional to charge a father with a felony instead of a misdemeanor for willfull nonsupport of his family because he remained outside the state for more than 30 days.

The state supreme court found the provision discriminated against the right of a person to choose where he wants to live by producing additional liability solely because he decides to remain away from California.

California sought review of the state court's decision in a case involving Clennon W. King who was convicted on Feb. 7, 1967, of failure to support his children which was judged to be a felony because he was out of the state from July 10, 1960 through June 1, 1966.

King argued that by punishing a father who remains out of the state more severely than a father who remains in California, the provision discriminated against non-California residents and was unconstitutional.

The state supreme court in agreeing with King said to require individuals to move to or remain in California "lacks constitutional sanction because it violates the individual's constitutional right to choose his own domicile and to travel freely throughout the country."

For example, the court said that if a father of a family in New York fails to provide support for his children, and his family subsequently moves to San Francisco, the father by remaining in New York for 30 days will be guilty of a felony. But a nonsupporting father of a family which moves from Los Angeles to San Francisco will be guilty of only a misdemeanor.

King, a school teacher and minister, moved his family from Georgia to Compton, Calif. in 1958 and to Rosarito Beach in Mexico in 1959. After King disappeared, his wife, Ann, moved the six children back to San Diego, Calif.

According to the state supreme court, King tried unsuccessfully to have his wife and family join him in Albany Ga., where he became a minister. California authorities in 1960 instituted nonsupport proceedings. He surendered to authorities in Chicago in 1966.

Guest Says Open House A Pleasure

It was all pleasure and no business at a gala open house-birthday party hosted Saturday by Alice B. Vincilione at her Larkspur residence and attended by about 200 persons, one guest reported today.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon, disgruntled at a story in Friday's Independent-Journal which he said raised question over the reasons for the party, reported the event party was Mrs. Vincilione's annual birthday celebration.

Brixon said he heard nothing discussed at the party that could be construed as "city business." "I wouldn't go to a party if I thought it was going to be what you inferred it was," he said.

(The Independent-Journal reported Friday that the purpose of the party was unknown to city officials, one city councilman saying it was a birthday party, a planning commissioner saying that it was an open house.)

According to Planning Commission Chairman Robert H. Lee, the party consisted of champagne, a buffet and meeting people.

"I'd say there were about 200 people . . . It's hard to say," he reported. "A lot of them I didn't know."

Lee said while he was attending the party, he saw one other planning commission, Leonard S. Rubin; three councilman, Brixon, Earl J. O'Grady and William G. Fleckles; and several members of the Park and Recreation Commission and the library board.

He said much of his time, like that of others, was spent touring the Vincilione home and the old Escalle Winery — recently renovated.

Hours after the party ended, a gathering of another sort was staged with Mrs. Vincilione in mind.

About 35 conservation-minded residents staged a "walk-in" through the controversial Baltimore Canyon after several speeches implored Mrs. Vincilione — executrix of the large Tiscornia Estate which owns the canyon — to leave the canyon open.

Gathering at 10 a.m. yesterday at the base of the canyon at the end of Madrone Avenue in Larkspur, the group trekked up the canyon pausing occasionally to view the scenery and historic landmarks.

According to organizer Joi Losee of the Larkspur Town Meeting the size of the group was less than she expected.

No city officials participated in the hike.

daybreak, according to assistant Fire Chief F. J. Lee.

There were no arrests and no injuries from the 19 arson fires at schools, businesses and residences, Mayor J. R. Allen said. He said firemen were hampered as they attempted to fight the fires by blacks pelting them with bricks and stones and cutting their hoses.

Angrily denouncing black leader Hosea Williams, who led Saturday's peaceful protest march, Allen said "the leader of this band of invaders sowed his hate, collected his contributions and left town."

The mayor vowed to "use every means at this government's disposal to return the city to peace and tranquility."

In Flrida, Jacksonville's violent-torn black neighborhoods remained relatively calm for the second consecutive night Sunday night with only a few firebombings and two alleged sniping incidents reported by police.

At least 339 persons have been arrested and damage is estimated at about $400,000 since the disturbances began Wednesday night.

TIMES

say he believes Sen. Robert F. Kennedy influenced then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to order the study in 1967 because Kennedy was looking for an issue to use against Johnson in the 1968 presidential campaign, Newsweek also reported.

—Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, the head of U.S. Army Public Information, said during the weekend that maintaining a continuous review of classified documents was a "tremendous problem" and that in his opinion, "this is not done often enough."

—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said Sunday night he would introduce a bill in Congress to create a seven-member indeperdent board responsible for declassifying secret government documents. He also supported the recommendation of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield that Congress investigate the "origins of the war" in Indochina.

—Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the Times publication of the Pentagon papers was an "example of historic journalistic courage" but upheld the right of the executive branch to classify information which is "a threat to the government of the United States."

—Delegates to the Wisconsin Democratic Convention in Madison voted to censure Johnson and Nixon for "deceptions and the tragic consequences in Southeast Asia" in a resolution based on the Pentagon study.

—Former Danish Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag charged in Copenhagen information contained in the study had destroyed the foundation for America's Vietnam policy and it was time for Denmark "to establish diplomatic relations with Hanoi and support a solution to the problems in Southeast Asia."

In Saturday's ruling, Gurfein said the Justice Department had not proven that release of the Pentagon documents would harm the national interest enough to justify an unprecedented "prior restraint" on publication. Gurfein had issued the original temporary injunction last Tuesday to allow the case to be heard.

COURT

wards said the argument for unrestricted employment of presidential power to wiretap "suggests that constitutional government is too weak to survive in a difficult world."

He noted that the Supreme Court in 1967 found electronic eavesdropping without court permission a violation of the 4th Amendment's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

In 1969, the Court held further that a defendant whose personal conversations had been illegally recorded was entitled to transcripts of the material without regard to whether a trial judge deemed them relevant to the proceedings. A preliminary examination by the judge can determine legality, however.

Mitchell argued that national security matters —both foreign and domestic —were outside the bounds of those rulings.

"The line between domestic activity and foreign intelligence is often blurred or merged," Mitchell told the Court. "It is ... important that such electronic surveillance is authorized only by the attorney general — and no other official —acting on behalf of the President."

The Edwards opinion said, however, that the 4th Amendment's restrictions did not prohibit the President from "defending the existence of the state."

"Nor does the 4th Amendment require that law enforcement officials be deprived of electronic surveillance," the opinion said. "What the 4th Amendment does is to establish the method they must follow."

Sentencing In Lane Changing

Alfred William Cherry, 53, of 296 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was sentenced in Marin Municipal Court May 20 for making an unsafe lane change.

Cherry was not sentenced for drunken driving as was reported previously in the Independent-Journal.

Cherry was arrested last Dec. 13 on Highway 101 on suspicion of drunken driving and was later charged with that offense.

By stipulation of his attorney and the district attorney's office, the charge was reduced last month to the lane change count, but no amended complaint was filed with court, resulting in the erroneous I-J report.

Cherry was placed on probation for ninety days and fined $62 for the unsafe lane change.

"It seems like only yesterday," Nixon added, noting their anniversary was marked by Father's Day telephone calls from their two married daughters, Julie Eisenhower and honeymooning Tricia Cox.

Soviet Defects, Called Top Space Research Man

LONDON (UPI)—A Soviet attempt to interview defector Anatoly Fedoseyev, reputedly a top Russian space official, most likely will follow British confirmation of his presence here, government sources said today.

The British Foreign Office said Sunday that Fedoseyev, 52, who vanished at the Paris Air Show three weeks ago, "is in this country and has been given permission to stay."

The government does not use the term "granted political asylum" so as not to prejudice any relatives the defector may have in his homeland, the sources said.

London newspapers quoted reports from Paris that Fedossiev fled to Britain because he had fallen in love with a British girl. A British Home Office spokesman declined to comment on the love affair reports.

FTC Cites Cereal Industry's High Profits, Low Competition

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Americans are paying 15 to 25 per cent more than they should have to for breakfast cereals because the industry spends heavily on advertising and makes unusually high profits, according to a Federal Trade Commission (FTC) study.

The study is still confidential because some of its proposals have not yet been acted on by the FTC's five commissioners; it was summarized, however, in congressional testimony released late last week and elaborated on for UPI by FTC sources.

The 11-month study concluded that the wholesale price cereal makers charge grocers is about 20 per cent above costs. In addition the "suggested" retail price, which the grocer generally uses, is again 20 per cent higher.

"Our preliminary analysis of the breakfast industry indicates profits far above competitive levels, excessive advertising expenditures and no emphasis on price competition," the FTC told Congress.

The study concerned only cold cereals. An economist involved in it told UPI "if the cereal business became more competitive, say like the produce section of the grocery, the consumer might save 25 per cent." In any case, he added, the saving would at least be 15 per cent.

The sugar coated cereals, aimed at children and plugged heavily on "kiddie" television shows, cost about a third more than other cereals, mainly because of big advertising budgets, the report said.

The economist said the three largest cereal makers —Kellogg Co., General Mills Inc., and Post Division, General Foods — share about 83 per cent of the $900 million-a-year cereal market. He said would-be competitors are reluctant to get into the cereal business because they could not spend as much for advertising.

Doubtful Psychology To Equal Status Of A Jack, Ten, Nine

If dummy has the jack-ten-nine of a suit in plain sight, is there any difference between the jack and the nine? Obviously not; the cards are "equals." The nine will do anything that the jack could do. All of this may be good logic but doubtful psychology, as demonstrated in a hand played in the 1952 European Championships.

FINAL MATCH

In the final match between Sweden and Italy, the Italian West led the six of diamonds. East won with the ace and returned the deuce of diamonds for his partner to ruff. West returned a club, forcing out the ace.

South seemed headed for defeat. He had already lost two tricks and was sure to lose to the ace of trumps. Whenever a defender took the ace of trumps he could presumably cash a club trick, defeating the contract.

Many players would give up, but Sweden's Jan Wohlin does not rely solely on logic. He led a spade to dummy's ace and returned the nine of diamonds.

NO SENSE

East's play of a low diamond makes no sense; it was just a matter of psychology. If declarer had led the jack rather than the nine of diamonds from the dummy, East would have covered with the queen of diamonds because it would have been clear that South intended to use the jack as a winning card. But when declarer led dummy's nine of diamonds, East wasn't alert to what was going on.

When East played a low diamond, Wohlin discarded the losing club from the South hand. West could ruff with the ace of trumps, but this gave the defense only one trick instead of two.

IMPROVEMENT?

Wohlin might have improved on his psychology by playing the jack of diamonds from dummy at the first trick and the ten of diamonds on the second. This would leave 9-7-5 of diamonds in the dummy, and declarer could get to dummy with the ace of spades to lead the lowly five of diamonds. It would take a very alert East to see the necessity of playing the queen on a mere five.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-8 5 4 2
♦-A Q 4 3 2
♣C-K 7. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

Ordinarily, you need 10 high-card points to respond at the level of two, but you can relax this rule when you hold good support for partner's bid suit. In this case you may count two points for the doubletons since you have four- card support for the spades. With a total of 11 points, you should bid your own suit first and raise partner's suit later.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, June 21, the 172nd day of 1971.

This is the first day of summer

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Saturn and Mercury. The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

Dan Carter Beard, pioneer of the Boy Scouts of America, was born June 21, 1850.

On this day in history:

In 1945 the World War II struggle for Okinawa Island, in the Ryukyu chain southwest of Japan, ended as the Japanese surrendered to American troops.

In 1960 the Sino-Soviet rift appeared when Soviet Premier Khrushchev said at a Communist party congress, "Under present conditions, war with capitalistic nations is not inevitable." The Red Chinese delegate replied, "War is inevitable as long as western imperialism exists."

In 1963 Giovannia Battista Cardinal Montini was elected pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. He chose the name Pope Paul VI.

In 1965 President Lyndon B. Johnson signed a $4.1 billion income tax bill.

A thought for today: Havelock Ellis said, "A man must not swallow more beliefs than he can digest."

Three Marinites File Suit As Test On Phone Tax

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Three Marin residents today filed a suit in U.S. District Court in San Francisco aimed at testing the legality of the so-called "telephone war tax."

The three, Roger Kent, Jack Bartlett and Gordon W. Strawbridge, said that more such suits will be filed by the Northern California Telephone War Tax Protest.

The suit charges that a 10 per cent tax levied by the federal government on telephones is illegal for several reasons.

First, the protestors say that Congress's taxing power cannot be used to require taxpayers to support an undeclared war.

The suit also claims that the tax, as a levy on the use of the telephone, restrains freedom of speech, and finally, the tax discriminates against phone subscribers by forcing them to pay more for the war in Vietnam than nonsubscribers.

Alan Barnett of Mill Valley, spokesman for the protest group, said that it is estimated that about 100,000 persons in the United States are now refusing to pay their telephone tax. He said the new protest is an effort to increase this number.

The protestors are asking the court to determine whether the tax is legal or not. In the meantime, they are withholding the tax and depositing the money in trust accounts.

If the tax is declared illegal, the protestors have asked that their money be given to the American Friends Service Committee.

Barnett said that two more such suits will be filed later and will contain lists of the names of persons who have also withheld their phone tax and placed the money in trust.

He said that since the protest was organized in Marin, branches have also been started in other Bay Area counties.

Kent is a longtime Democratic leader who lives in Kent Woodlands. Bartlett, a Mill Valley resident, is former associate minister of the Mill Valley Community Church and Strawbridge is a former Mill Valley mayor.

Three Die In Automobile Accidents

Three persons died in automobile accidents in Marin yesterday, two going to their death in flames on Highway 101, one dying in a Novato field, pinned beneath his car.

Their deaths brought to 17 the number killed in traffic accidents in the county this year, as compared to 16 by this time last year.

A 27-year-old San Francisco woman and a man vacationing in California from Sweden were killed when their auto burst into flames after being struck by another vehicle northbound on Highway 101 near Hamilton Air Force Base.

The California Highway Patrol said Anita E. Karlberg, apparently the driver of the car, was fatally injured in the three-car collision about 12:30 p.m. A passenger, Christian Von Tresckow, 29, of Sweden was also killed in the blazing wreck.

Their 1965 Ford Mustang was engulfed by flames by the time officers arrived, with both persons still in the auto. Novato firemen were called to extinguish the blaze which sent smoke billowing over the highway.

Officers said the Karlberg auto apparently struck a Volkswagen bus, which witnesses said left the scene of the accident before the highway patrol arrived. The Karlberg auto was then hit from the rear by a car driven by Alex Connelly, 25, of Daly City. Connelly was treated for a cut lip at Novato General Hospital.

The Marin County coroner's office could not say today if the pair died from injuries received in the accident or from the fire. Both bodies were badly charred.

Von Tresckow had arrived in San Francisco Tuesday from Sweden for a vacation, the Coroner's office said.

Mrs. Karlberg and Von Tresckow were taken to Keaton's Chapel of Marin in Novato.

An 18-year-old Novato youth was killed when his car veered off San Marin Dive, cut through a barbed wire fence and overturned.

Killed was Patrick Lee Monje, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Monje of 49 Trish Drive.

Novato police said Monje's car was discovered at 6:42 a.m. in a field parallel to San Marin Drive, about a quarter of a mile west of Highway 101.

Officers said the cause of the accident was undetermined.

Monje was pinned under his car, and when officers arrived they couldn't find any sign of life. He was taken to Marin General Hospital where he was reported dead on arrival.

The road was clear and the speed of the car was undetermined, police said. The eastbound car went off the road and knocked down about 90 feet of fencing on the Frank Pinheiro Ranch before overturning, police said.

Monje was a native of Michigan and had lived in Marin for seven years.

Surviving, besides his parents, are two brothers, Michael T. Monje, serving with the Army, and James Monje of Novato.

A Requiem Mass will be offered at 10:30 a.m. tomrrow at Our Lady of Loretto Church, Novato. Burial will be at Marin Memorial Gardens.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Keaton's Chapel of Marin.

Oriental Rugs

AUCTION TUESDAY, JUNE 22nd

Free Exhibition of Ancient Art Form at the EDGEWATER INN, Corte Madera (exit off 101) by Esfandi

IRAN: an exhibition of over 100 examples of authentic Oriental and Persian Rugs will be held free to the public on Tuesday, June 22, at 5 pm at the EDGEWATER INN, 1801 Redwood Hwy. Corte Madera (exit Hwy. 101) followed at 7:30 p.m. by an auction and brief talk on the historical significance of this rare art form.

JUNE FESTIVAL AUCTION

Each year in special celebration of rugs completed for the marketing month of June, Persian rug-weavers celebrate several months of hard work. Their finest work and many other rugs are prepared for transportation and sale at the bazaar for direct export to Europe and America.

Here in the U.S. we plan to celebrate this important event and arrival of our unusual selection of 'June' rugs, just cleared government inspection.

You are invited to the free exhibition to view lovely floral and geometric masterpieces of design which are still made the same way as 1000 years ago. You will see the vibrant colors created from carefully guarded vegetable dye recipes handed down from father to son. Years of work, beginning with shearing the sheep for wool, spinning it to drawing the design on paper evolve into the final work of art. A large celebration follows the completion of each rug, whereupon it is ceremoniously washed in a mineral stream.

Not only are they beautiful, but most banks accept rugs for security deposit. These works last a lifetime and add a beauty accent to any home.

Residents of Marin County and San Francisco areas are urged to visit the Tuesday auction and evaluate the beauty and craftsmanship of those oriental rugs shown to add to or begin their collection of an ancient art which is destined to grow more invaluable as it becomes rarer.

No frost. No fuss.

New refrigerator-freezers are frost-free, which frees you from the drudgery of defrosting. No more filling and spilling of ice trays, either, with the optional feature of an automatic ice maker. What's more, new models give you more freezer and refrigerator storage in the same floor space. If all this sounds like something you need, see your appliance dealer.

Italians Fear Political 7-year Hiatus Outcome

ROME (UPI)—The dreaded "blank semester" of Italian politics is around the corner and rival factions are looking with hope or fear to the six months when anything can happen.

The "blank semester" comes once in every seven years. In the past it has never had any dire consequences. But this time dissensions and intrigue inside the coalition government of Premier Emilio Colombo are so widespread that everyone suspects that other may take advantage of one of the weak spots in the Italian constitution.

President Giuseppe Saragat enters the final six months of his seven year term June 28, and under the constitutional system of checks and balances he then loses one of his chief powers—that of dissolving Parliament and calling new elections if there is an insoluble government crisis.

Since Italy's figurehead presidents are elected by Parliament, the measure is intended to prevent a chief of state from using the threat of dissolution as a weapon for his re-election. But in so doing, it creates an imbalance elsewhere by giving Parliament members six months of virtual immunity to act as they please without having to answer immediately to the voters.

This means Christian Democrats, Socialists and Social Democrats in Colombo's halfhearted coalition are free to call one another names even more loudly and bitterly than they have done so far. The largest Communist party in the West, which already has exploited divisions in the government camp to influence the outcome of important Parliament votes, can increase its pressure. Colombo has the unpleasant choice of taking all the slaps or starting a government crisis which may go unsolved until after Parliament elects Saragat's successor after Christmas.

In a country where the economy is already suffering from lack of political leadership, another six months of drift might mean recession, mass unemployment and violence.

What makes the "blank semester" so dangerous this time is the steady decay of the center-left alliance of Christian Democrats and Socialists, billed at its start in 1962 as the historic answer to Italy's ills.

They called it a majority broad enough to guarantee government stability, carry out social reform and give Italy a programmed economy.

Yet since 1962 nine center-left governments have fallen. Cabinet ministers from rival factions are publicly accusing one another of patronage and incompetence. Most reform legislation has not gotten anywhere and the government is passing piecemeal legislation under pressure from strikers and lobbyists without even pretending any more to be observing its own economic priorities.

The unstable political situation was shown vividly in the national elections last week, in which Colombo's coalition government was shaken. His Christian democratic party slipped to 31 per cent of the vote, instead of its usual 40 per cent. The coalition government was not endangered, but new strains were added.

The biggest gains surprisingly came to the right-wing Neo-Fascists, who polled 13.9 per cent of the over-all vote by the 7.2 million persons who went to the polls in Sicily, two mainland provinces and 158 cities and towns. The Communist party decl ned in some places and ended with 26.3 per cent of the vote.

Some politicians have recommended that Saragat resign ahead of schedule in order to do away with the dreaded power vacuum of the "blank semester." Saragat has not indicated so far how he feels about this.

Even assuming the "blank semester" comes and goes without trouble, there is likely to be plenty of trouble when it ends. Each successive presidential election has become longer, more intrigue-ridden and more nerve-wracking. Saragat was elected by Parliament Dec. 28, 1964, after a record 13 days and 21 ballots win which some parliamentarians cast ironical votes for Pope Paul VI and film star Sofia Loren.

Potential but unofficial candidates this time include Saragat himself, Socialist Vice Premier Francesco De Martino, veteran Socialist leader Pietro Nenni and at least three members of Colombo's Christian Democratic party—Senate President Amintore Fanfani, Foreign Minister Aldo Moro and ex-Premier Giovanni Loene, who was Saragat's chief rival in the 1964 vote.

San Francisco To Hold Hiring White Teachers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—As part of its court-compelled integration plan, the San Francisco Board of Education plans to stop hiring white teachers until its faculty has achieved a 62 per cent "minority" representation.

The 62 per cent figure would match the school district's racial composition of students, and the halt in hiring white teachers could consequently last for years.,

The board approved last week and will submit it to U.S. District Judge Stanley Wiegel, who ordered it earlier to come up with a plan for total integration to be put into effect next September.

The plan was submitted to Weigel earlier this spring, and he has it under consideration.

Under the proposal adopted Thursday night, all hiring service jobs requiring a college degree also will be limited to "minorities."

Auto Held Top Children's Killer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—A New Jersey pediatrician said Sunday the automobile is more deadly to children than various diseases.

Dr. Seymour Charles told the American Medical Association convention here parents do not understand "they are abusing and neglecting their small children by not putting them in some kind of safety device every time the car moves."

He also accused the government, the automobile industry and the AMA of failing to correct deficiencies which allow these deaths to occur.

"More youngsters between the ages of 1 and 14 are killed by motor vehicles than by cancer, congenital malformations, pneumonia, heart disease and meningitis," Charles said.

Irate Taxpayers Announce Speaker

Holmes F. Crouch, president of United Taxpayers, Inc., of Santa Clara, will be guest speaker at the Irate Taxpayers of Marin public meeting, 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building in San Rafael.

Members and the public also will discuss the impact of property assessments, governmental budgets and tax bills, according to Winifred S. Frederick, publicity chairman.

$1 Billion Laos Fund Claimed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., says the United States is spending $1 billion in economic and military aid for Laos.

"The only published figure given to the people so far about what we're spending in Laos is $52 million for economic aid," Symington said Sunday. "Yet, I'm certain in my own mind that if you include the bombing that has taken place in Laos, the figure is over $1 billion."

Symington is chairman of a Senate foreign relations subcommittee, which recently sent its staff members to Laos to investigate U.S. operations there.

TV Commercials Use Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nicholas Johnson, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, suggests television commercials should be limited to about eight minutes an hour, and be bunched on the hour and half-hour so that programs would not be broken up.

Johnson outlined his views on the subject Sunday in a letter to Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., as a follow-up to an appearance he made last week before Dingell's small business subcommittee. He said he had some specific suggestions which he would raise with his fellow commissioners.

"It is not in the public interest for any licensee to televise more than eight minutes of commercial in any clock hour," he said. He said British Commercial television does not allow even that much.

LICKING DRIPPING ice cream cones, Japan's top-ranking girl tennis players beat the heat at Belvedere Tennis Club's ninth annual tournament before their exhibition match. Eri Murata, center, was third in Japan's under-18-years-old finals, and Naoko Sato, right, daughter of Japan's secretary of the treasury, was first in under-15-years-old division there. They were houseguests of Mrs. Richard Stansbury of Tiburon, left, from Thursday through yesterday for the tournament. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

BELVEDERE EXHIBITION

Japanese Stars Visit

By PAT BALMES

Japan's teen-age girl tennis stars played exhibition matches Thursday and Friday at Belvedere Tennis Club during its ninth annual Belvedere Tennis Tournament, which this year is also the annual Northern California Junior Sectional Tournament.

Naoko (Nan) Sato, 16, and Eri Murata, 17, were afraid when they left Toyko on June 3. This was their first trip abroad.

"We didn't expect this hospitality," Nan said. "Now we are having a good time."

During their first two weeks in California they won the doubles match at the Fresno tournament, but lost the singles to the California girls. Representing Japan's Lawn Tennis Association they are here at the invitation of tennis pro Larry Luebner of Fresno. In honor of his friend, the late Japanese tennis star Ichiya Kumagai, Luebner will invite two Japanese teen-agers each summer to tour California in exhibition matches and tournament play.

Mrs. Huebner has arranged for them to be houseguests in each town where they will play. Delivering the girls to their Tiburon hostess, Mrs. Richard Stansbury, for their four-day stay, she reported that these Japanese teen-agers love all sports.

"THEY ARRIVED from Japan after 40 hours without sleep and went swimming right away, played baseball, rode bikes and played ping-pong. But the next morning they slept until 11 a.m." she laughed. She took the girls to Yosemite National Park where they commented, "so wide, so spacious!" They say "every little space" in Japan is taken and were amazed by so much open space on their drive here from Fresno.

Nan was winner of Japan's under-15-years-old division in girl's tennis last year. Vivacious and demonstrative, she is the daughter of Japan's secretary of the treasury. She nodded vigorously and used her hands to convey her meaning through volunteer interpreter Mrs. Jerry Osumi of Corte Madera. The girls are learning English in high school.

Taller and more sedate is Eri who placed third in the under-18-years-old group in Japan. Her father is an engineer.

AT BELVEDERE Tennis Club the girls wore sleeveless pastel dresses and munched fried chicken in their fingers before playing tennis. They said there is "not much difference" between California and Toyko because their big city is so westernized. However, in Japan tennis clubs are strictly for tennis. Here, the clubs have swimming pools and table tennis, too. "This we like!" they say.

Another surprise was that California tennis players swim, too. In Tokyo "we are scolded if we are tennis players for swimming" because it softens the leg muscles, the girls said.

They add that there are no professional tennis players in Japan. The girls plan to go on to college and continue in tennis.

Their breakfasts with American families are the same as in Japan, where their day starts at 5 a.m. with tennis practice for an hour before school. They are not excused from physical fitness class, even though they practice for as many as four more hours in the afternoon if there is light.

"WE REALLY enjoy practicing when there is a tournament to look forward to, but not so much when there is none," say the Japanese girls. Only when it rains do they get together with friends.

"At present we are happy with our life of tennis, but when we have a rainy-day date with boys we do not like tennis so well" says Nan candidly.

There are no dances for teenagers in Japan, the girls say, so when they "go around" with boys, they play tennis together. Before a tournament they refuse dates because they must train, not because their parents or their trainers tell them to. They asked if American parents of tennis players insisted that their children practice.

The girls will also play in Berkeley, San Jose, and Burlingame and will visit Disneyland before returning to Japan in mid-July.

Mrs. Stansbury planned to serve the Japanese girls barbecued steaks in her backyard for their first Marin dinner. The chef was her husband, a Pan American Airline pilot who has made many trips to Japan. Joyce Stansbury hoped that "the few words of Japanese that he knows will be the ones we will need."

GOLDEN WEDDING

Surprise Party Honors Kaufmans

As a member of the Olympic Swimming Hall of Fame, Beth Kaufman is used to having her name in the newspapers for her contributions to amateur swimming in the United States.

But when it came to celebrating their golden wedding June 4 the Kaufmans "thought we'd keep it quiet." As it turned out, quite a few people knew about it. When Jack and Beth Kaufman of Greenbrae went south the next day to visit their daughter, Mrs. Gordon Murray, near Los Angeles, they found themselves the honored guests at a surprise party arranged by their daughter and their son, Jerome Kaufman, who came out from his home in Roundhill, Va. And among the guests were many former Olympic swimmers Mrs. Kaufman had known.

They had actually gone south to visit with their grandson, Charles Murray, who had won a football scholarship to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

"I'm proud he won an athletic scholarship," commented his grandmother, In all, the Kaufmans have six grandsons and three granddaughters and see many of them during their frequent trips through the Bay Area.

THE KAUFMANS were married in San Francisco June 4, 1921, and came to live in Marin that year, first in Corte Madera and later in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Kaufman says she went to work as a printer at the age of 13 — "before they had linotype machines and we handset the type." And as a youngster she spent summers in Marin.

Mr. Kaufman was an electronics engineering consultant for such as Hughes aircraft, traveling for the job and he also worked for Globe Wireless and other firms.

Now they're retired, and it's hardly coincidence that the Kaufmans' Bon Air apartment overlooks the 35 meter Olympic regulation swimming pool next door.

"I'm retired for old age," says Beth Kaufman, who instructed swimmers through much of her life, but she still swims 500 meters a day. She says her husband is less enthusiastic and swims occasionally. He prefers photography and jokingly calls the group of over-65s who swim each morning at the Bon Air pool the "Medicares," reports his wife with a laugh.

"But we call ourselves the senior team," she says, and "the youngsters move over and let us have a lane to ourselves."

MRS. KAUFMAN has taught countless Marin youngsters to swim through her years with the Red Cross, Boy Scouts and Amateur Athletic Union, and even up until two years ago she coached "some boys who came here an hour before school and worked out."

"But I've quit — I'm 76," she tells you. Then she mentions that she's also "taught a few old people here to swim."

Mrs. Kaufman decided to become a swimming instructor after she helplessly witnessed the drowning of a friend in the surf at Ventura in 1923. And in the succeeding 40-plus years her outstanding teaching career was to merit her entry into the Olympic Hall of Fame, the International Amateur Athletic award for outstanding contribution to swimming — the first given to an individual rather than a country — and an array of trophies and awards from organizations she has served through her swimming and water safety instruction.

One of her proudest achievements was originating the idea of age group swimming in the U.S., which offers a better balanced swim program for budding competitors, and watching its growth. And for many years Mrs. Kaufman headed Marin County's Red Cross swimming and water safety program.

So it is not surprising that she said about the golden wedding, "no orchids for me; I'd rather wear my old swim suit than orchids."

Nor is her advice to young newlyweds — "A four letter word used often — W-O-R-K — that's good advice for a lot of things."

How To Cut Down On The Living Expenses

You can cut down on your living expenses, says the July issue of Family Circle magazine. An article suggests:

Obtaining sample drugs from doctors to see if they fill the need before filling a costly prescription at the druggists'.

Dial your own telephone calls, using bargain hours for long-distance calling.

Shop around for best credit, when buying a large article — perhaps trying a pass book loan or loan from a credit union or bank.

Look at cheap appliances suspiciously, and estimate the cost per year over its use-span. The longer it lasts the cheaper it is. Check before buying to see if it will go on sale soon.

HELEN HELP US!

Wondering About Having An Affair? Then You Aren't Type To Have One

DEAR HELEN:

Are there really as many extra-marital affairs going on as people assume, from all the talk and stuff written about them? I mean, how do unfaithful mates manage it? I can see where a traveling salesman might go in for hanky-panky, but at home? Even if I have a very innocent lunch with a business acquaintance, I'm bound to see a "friend" who is quick with the raised eyebrows.

I'm sure I'd know the minute my husband tried a little something on the side - because his coming-home pattern would change - and most men can't take off from work during the daytime.

Likewise, if I fell for another man, where and when could we meet, what with children to care for, my job, the neighbors and various people-watchers always getting in the way?

I'm not asking for a guide to double-living, Helen. I just wonder whether trying to have an affair would be worth all the trouble, and if it remains "secret," is it simply because the other partner knows but keeps eyes closed? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS:

The man who asks the price of a yacht can't afford one.

The women who wonders whether an affair would be worth the trouble isn't the type to have one. Infidelity is for people who either enjoy living dangerously or don't care whom they hurt; and you're probably right: the "secret" - seldom is.

I doubt that you and your husband need worry about the other's unfaithfulness, lucky you? — H.

P.S. . . . And then there are those who "see" what may not be there, to wit:

DEAR HELEN:

We started renting to a couple and, as our houses are on the same lot, we see them often. She is about 55 and her husband is much older and retired.

My husband couldn't do enough for them - always making repairs, etc. Said he wanted to be "a good landlord."

I went away for a day and when I came back I saw my husband coming from their garage (where there is also an old sofa). I swear he smelled like the cologne he got for Christmas two years ago and never used because he didn't "want to put on airs."

I asked him what he was doing over there and he said he had to fix a cupboard door. He doesn't go over so much now, BUT -

Ever since then this woman has worn dresses instead of the baggy old pants she used to live in. And my husband keeps on having lots of excuses when I try to get him interested in ME, except maybe every week or so. (I'm also 55, and better looking than she!)

My husband is 73 but very young for his age, with an eye for the ladies. I'm home most of the time and so is her old man, but where there's a will . . - Do you suppose there's a way? — SUSPICIOUS MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.:

No way! Or, at least, it's very doubtful. Even if there was a will, your young man of 73 might find two women one too many. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Can you or your readers tell me if there is a shoe exchange for one-legged people? My mother lost her leg five years ago, and prefers not to wear an artificial limb. So she has a whole closet full of brand new shoes, all for the left foot. Is there an agency that would take them and distribute them to people of the same shoe size who have lost their right foot? — DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER:

I've heard of such an organization but I don't know the address. Help anybody? — H.

Stale Food Battle May Hinge On Fuss Over Baby Formulas

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The battle to get stale food off store shelves may hinge on what happens in the latest skirmish over baby formulas.

The question is not only whether some baby formulas are kept on the market beyond their useful lfe but how prospective buyers can tell the relative freshness of these products.

Although numerous manufacturers, responding to consumer demands, have begun to disclose dates on package labels, the meaning of the dates is not always clear. Some refer to date of manufacturer; others refer to the last day the item should be kept on sale.

During the past year, bands of housewives around the country have sought not only to crack the secret dating codes but to determine whether dates refer to manufacturing time or expiration of freshness.

IN ITS recently published booklet, "Codes or Dated Edibles," the National Consumers Union of Prospect Heights, Ill., reported that it had gotten "the run-around" when it asked for code data from some manufacturers. It urged a boycott of all products where the expiration date was not clear.

Most infant formula products carry a statement saying: "Do not use after" specified date. Others simply carry codes that disguise the date.

For example, the code for Enfamil, a product of Mead-Johnson, lists three letters and two numbers, but only the second and third letters are important. The second letter refers to the month in an alphabetical order beginning with "A" for January.

The third letter refers to the year, but the code is not alphabetical. N equals 1968, S equals 1969, C means 1970, and M means 1971. And the final answer is not the expiration date but the manufacturing date.

To the manufacturing date must be added a standard period of freshness to determine the expiration date. According to the standards used by the U.S. Army, the effective storage life at 70 degrees is 12 months. According to most manufacturers, it si 18 months.

Actually, freshness depends on the quality of the product, the temperature at which it is stored and the quality of packaging. Old products tend to get sticky, lumpy, pasty and take on odd odors and tastes.

A survey of stores in five states just completed by volunteers enlisted by the Consumer Federation of America revealed "large quantities of outdated baby formula" being sold.

In a letter to Charles C. Edwards, head of the Food and Drug Administration, the CFA recommended prompt action by manufacturers in recalling old products and an effort to require retailers to check on the freshness of items on sale.

THE SURVEY showed that 63 out of 110 stores checked had baby formula on sale beyond the 18-month period. The states were Arizona, California, Illinois, Louisiana and Oregon.

In additon, surveyers found leaking cans, price stickers pasted over expiration dates, blurred or missing dates and markings, store managers who never noticed the expiration dates and other store managers who blamed the situation on manufacturers' representatives.

Her advice to mothers: stick to packages with expiration dates on them; coded products are being phased out by most manufacturers.

Believe it or not that fine tricot jersey that we take so much for granted actually comes in two different kinds of weaves, the one-bar and the two-bar. In one-bar tricot, the thread is fed to the fabric from the warp beam or spool for each row of loops. The fabric thus created is run-resistant. In two-bar weaving, two separate warp threads are fed to the fabric, and the fabric is so interlocked as to be run-proof. Make sure of the kind that you buy.

Political Caucus To Be Formed

Feminist Betty Friedan has announced that a national women's political caucus will be organized this summer, according to the Spokeswoman, a national newlaetter for women, Mrs. Friedan said that an organizational meeting will be held Saturday and Sunday in Washington, D.C. to set what she called a "realistic goal" or electing women to a possible 100 national, state and local offices in 1972, according to the newsletter.

The author of "The Feminine Mystique" said that the national women's political causus would help raise campaign funds and provide a national liason, drawing women together across party lines and differing political philosophies.

"This isn't a matter of replacing male politicos with female ones . . . women are going to put humanists in power," Mrs. Friedan said.

The National Committee on Household Employment has announced it will hold the first national conference of household workers, largely women, next month. The conference will be held July 16 to 18 in Washington, D.C.

Belvedere Is Scene Of Wedding

Nuptials at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere Saturday afternoon united in marriage Candace Diane Atkinson of Tiburon and Alexander Henry King of San Francisco.

Melissa Anne Atkinson, the bride's only sister, was her honor attendant, and Lynn Sanken of El Granada was the bridesmaid.

Best man duties were performed by Donald Test of San Francisco. Howard Gray Jr., Douglas Jensen and Irwin Weller, all of San Francisco, seated the guests.

The reception was held afterward in the garden of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Norman Atkinson of Tiburon.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Canada and will live in San Francisco on their return.

Candace is a graduate of Duchesne Academy of the Sacred Heart in Houston, Tex., and the College of Marin. She also attended the University of Arizona, and is employed in the commercial department of Pacific Telephone Company in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barclay King of San Francisco are Alexander's parents. He is a graduate of Bullard High School in Fresno and attended Fresno State College. He is an administrative assistant to Sen. Milton Marks in San Francisco. Mrs. Irwin Weller of San Francisco is his local grandparent.

Bride Showers Begun By Dutch

The bride-to-be who is showered with gifts before her wedding owes her gratitude to a stubborn Dutch girl.

According to an American greeting card firm's research, legend is that the little Dutch girl's father refused her a dowry because she insisted on marrying a miller, the boy she loved, rather than the farmer her father had chosen forher.

The miller won her hand, but they lost the dowry. Friends on seeing their plight, goes the legend, made up for the dowry by gathering up china, linen, pots and pans and other household goods and "showering" the couple with them.

Verdict Reversal Is Insult To Jury

Weird charges — of police brutality and a quota system — were involved in the drunken driving trial of William M. Bennett, member of the state Board of Equalization.

But the weirdest of all was the manner in which the jury was allowed to deliberate and return its verdict, only to have it overturned by the judge, who, by his own admission, had pre-determined that the case should be dismissed.

WE ACKNOWLEDGE Judge Robert A. Smallman's courage in overturning the considered opinion of 12 jurors. However, that courage should have been exercised before the jury was allowed to go through what proved to be futile deliberations.

After the testimony had been completed, the judge announced, outside the presence of the jury, that he was prepared to reverse the jurors if they brought in a guilty verdict.

THAT'S LIKE ASKING a panel of judges in a contest to pick a winner when the ultimate winner is pre-ordained. That's like telling a panel of 12: "Go into a huddle and see if you can come up with the right answer. If you do, you get a star. If you don't, I'll set you straight!"

It makes a mockery of the jury system and is demoralizing to future juries, which would be wondering whether their deliberations are contributing to the American system of justice or are mere exercises in futility.

A MORE FORTHRIGHT approach would have been for the judge, if he felt that conviction would be a miscarriage of justice, to so inform the jurors before they went into deliberations, not after.

If some compelling reason existed, legal or otherwise, for the weird manner in which the verdict was handled, that reason completely escapes us.

Mockingbird Lore

The mockingbirds of San Rafael are singing sweetly intc the evening these warm spring days. A long-tailed gray fellow, the mockingbird usually nests in vines or shrubs along a fence or against a house.

We expressed the opinion that such nesting habits were dangerous because they made the birds vulnerable to prowling cats. Not so, says our friend, an amateur mockingbirdologist. He tells us how a pair of mockingbirds will swoop on a cat that approaches the vicinity of their nest. One will hit the cat while the confused kitty is looking at the other one which has just hit it from the other side. Everytime the cat looks away the birds swoop. This makes most cats very nervous and unhappy.

Mockingbirds are famed as mimics of the songs of other birds, which they pour forth in melodic profusion.

Many Politicians Ignore Opinion Poll

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Citizens generally are used to politicians who ignore them. It has been a comfortable relationship unstrained by the pretense of communication.

The politicians' growing devotion to mass opinion polls, however, endangers this old relationship.

No longer content with a random sample, these public servants arm themselves with computers to canvass their entire electorate. But they forget that once they ask a citizen's opinion, he may expect his opinion to be heeded.

THAT'S THE DANGER, for the inevitable result is to awaken the citizen who was happier "in his place." Now, for the first time, most every citizen has been made to feel he can take part in his elected officials' decisions — when in fact he probably won't.

Only a few politicians are ambitious enough to heed their polls, but most don't seem to give a fig about how their constituents really feel about the war, poverty, supersonic transport, pollution or the economy. Just keep feeding the folks back home assurances that they are well represented.

POLITICIANS HONEST enough to confess to themselves that they will ignore their constituents always can jump on the poll bandwagon by polling them on creampuff issues. Motherhood and that sort.

Two recent polls showed this sort of contrast.

One, from Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, asked if there should be laws to create a Golden Gate National Recreation Area, establish job retraining programs for unemployed defense and space workers, help the United Nations curb drugs and narcotics, limit political campaign spending and increase Social Security. A dull poll.

THE OTHER, from Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-14th District, dealt with withdrawing from Vietnam, improving diplomatic and trade relations with China, giving military aid to Israel, enforcing stricter pollution controls, setting wage and price controls, retiring J. Edgar Hoover, tapping telephones and protecting California's wild rivers. An exciting poll.

Waldie's poll also acknowledged that most households had at least two persons who might have more than one viewpoint, so he provided separate spaces for husbands and wives to respond. Mailliard, preferring a consensus, offered space for only one response.

Mailliard, incidentally, has added a San Francisco newspaperman to his Washington staff. This hardly fits hopes by Democrats salivating for Mailliard's seat that he will not seek reelection.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Recent Graduate Lauds 'On Location'

I was a bit dissatisfied with your editorial of June 15 about the On Location programs available at the local public high schools. I speak from a student's perspective as one who has just graduated from Redwood High School, and have attended one semester of its On Location program.

You claim that the On Location student misses "not only discipline but also the disciplines" of the classroom learning situation. It is true that the classroom discipline is necessary for some subjects in high school, but there are numerous other subjects where the student is hampered by sitting in a chair within a classroom for his lesson. It is precisely these subjects that On Location covers, allowing the students to flourish.

For an example, imagine your government studies classes doing such things as studying the judicial system by actually attending court sessions, riding in a police patrol car in Berkeley for a few evenings, or working with the Economic Opportunity Council. And these are only a few of the things we've done within just this one block of study.

Perhaps more important, though, is that the students in On Location are being prepared for the times as they are, not as they were. They are given responsibility, and accept it. They are not only taught facts, but especially taught how to find facts, something which seems very important in preparing the student for tomorrow. Equally important, personal growth is immense. Through group work, which is encouraged, students learn how to work with each other towards a common goal, and often deep friendships develop between them. This is hardly the case within the classroom and the "disciplines" it has to offer, at least it seems after having seven semesters of classroom education as every On Location student has.

The best thing you, the reader, can do is to find an On Location graduate and talk to him about his experience. We, a little snobbishly, think of ourselves as exclusively fortunate to be graduates of such a system, and hope many others will be able to participate in On Location in the future.

(By the way, if the editor or any of the staff would like to talk to some of the students of On Location to really find out what it is about, we would be delighted to come over sometime and talk about it with you — at your convenience.)

As Railroads Decline So Do Number of Jobs

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

Since productivity is discussed mainly by management and academic types, there are those in organized labor who seem to see it as some sort of plot to oppress the workers. It's a misunderstanding that has been expensive to a great many people, not least of all the workers themselves.

Every employer starts with a collection of resources, both human and material. With them he tries to produce as much as he can at as low a cost as possible.

HOW SUCCESSFUL he is in increasing productivity determines, among other things, how much he must charge for his goods or services if he is to make a profit. If he can keep his prices down he may win a larger share of the market, and higher sales may mean higher profits.

Higher sales also will mean more jobs for workers. And rising productivity will enable the company to pay its employes more without having to think about price increases that could shrink both its share of the market and the jobs it provides.

Government long ago began overseeing this process, protecting the workers' interests with laws on overtime, working conditions and the whole range of labor-management relations. But improving productivity sometimes demands changes in an employer's use of resources, and from that comes many problems.

CHANGE CAN MEAN that an employer, for the present at least, will need fewer workers or differently trained workers. It can call for a lot of human readjustments, often painful ones, and labor unions can, and occasionally do, serve a useful function in cushioning the impact for their members.

In far too many cases, though, unions have simply tried to eliminate the impact by preventing change. One industry where this approach has been pushed to extremes is railroading. In a speech recently, William H. Moore, president of the financially beleagured Penn Central, was talking of some of the troubles that have been caused.

OVER THE YEARS the unions have saddled the Penn Central, along with other railroads, with rules and regulations limiting the amount and type of work that various workers can do, as well as specifying the numbers of workers that must be used on certain tasks. (Management can't be held blameless since it did agree to most of the rules; governmental pressure, however, was often working on the unions' side)

As a result, said M. Moore, the Penn Central now employs no less than 10,000 persons for whom it has no need whatsoever.

A sizable segment of the railroad's relatively meager resources, in other words, has no productivity at all. Yet the unions go on demanding sharply higher wages and firmly resisting any efforts to increase railroad efficiency.

WHAT IS EXPECIALLY nettling to rail management is that the government often seems entirely insensitive to the situation. Last December Congress passed a law to raise wages and stop a rail strike but it blithely ignored the railroads' request for work-rule changes that would have eased slightly the burden of higher pay roll costs.

In several states, Mr. Moore said, state law actually requires the Penn Central to use more men on its trains then are necessary. The laws, promoted by the unions, are supposed to enhance railroad safety. In fact, noted the Penn Central president, the railroad operates elsewhere with smaller crews — and with safety records that are as good or better than those in the so-called full-crew states.

IF THE DEMAND for railroad service were inelastic, if there were no close substitutes for such services, the assault on productivity might not be so expensive for the workers. Rising railroad costs would merely lead to higher prices for rail services and the railroads would go on running as before.

Demand for rail services, as it happens, is not inelastic; automobiles, trucks, airplanes and other types of transportation have taken over many jobs that railroads once performed. Railroads can still be highly useful, but they will go on declining if their use continues to become less and less economic.

As the railroads decline, of course, so does the number of jobs they provide. In this industry and elsewhere, labor's attack on productivity is sadly self-distructive.

Create Special Commission To Get Entire Vietnam Story

WASHINGTON — All of the facts about the origins, planning and escalation of U.S. combat in Vietnam must be brought into the open.

Some of the facts are now coming out in the master excerpts from the 7,000-page Pentagon study published in the New York Times.

This is only part of the truth about how we went to war in Indochina, and when only some of the facts are revealed, the whole picture can get badly out of perspective.

To get none of the truth is bad enough. To get half the truth can be worse.

THIS IS WHY Congress should go after the whole story of how one involvement led to another. Its objective should not be assigning blame but rather learning the lessons from Vietnam so that past mistakes won't be readily repeated.

Surely the best way to do this is for Congress to create a special commission on the origins and lessons of the Vietnamese war to be made up of both congressional and presidential appointees. Most of the hearings could be public.

Some will want to have a senatorial inquiry, but it is hard to see how this could escape partisanship particularly in an election period and thus add to confusion and lack of credibility.

ENOUGH HAS COME out from the Pentagon report — whether leaked, purloined or given to The Times by someone with authority to do so — to deepen the doubts of many that Presidents Kennedy and Johnson carried concealment much too far in preparing to escalate U.S. commitment while appearing not to.

The publicized Pentagon study is not the final word, is not conclusive and should not be accepted as such. But it reveals enough so that Congress and the public should demand more — and get it.

Let me indicate some questions which need to be explored further.

The extracts from the Pentagon study show that the Johnson Administration planned major military action against North Vietnam several months before the attack on American ships in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin.

THE IMPLICATION is that this action proved Johnson was getting ready to expand the U.S. combat role without congressional authorization and was looking for some justification to begin.

But this isn't proved. Contingency military planning is essential. The military would be remiss if it weren't prepared for the unexpected.

However, the Pentagon study also suggests that L.B.J. and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara were keeping their plans concealed both from Congress and the public, at least until events went so far that congressional approval could hardly be withheld.

THE EXTRACTS published by The Times are limited and may be one-sided. The Washington Post significantly reports that some of the published account "was based on summations by unnamed analysts who examined the documents and who were by that time opponents of the war effort."

It seems evident that the Pentagon study was improperly made available to the New York Times. But why was it kept secret by the Nixon Administration so long? President Nixon certainly has no motives to hold it back for political reasons since the report in no way reflects on his actions.

The overriding need is for candor with Congress and with the country. Now that part of the account is in the public domain — some of it so limited it is misleading — all of the facts to be brought out, the sooner the better.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

It's About Time FBI Stops Acting Like God

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — This capital, more than most of the country, remains aflap over the publication of secret Pentagon files on the Vietnamese war. Column after column of excerpts, comment and coverage of executive, legislative and judiciary branch reaction to the New York Times coup has buried other news here for a full week. And my agent in Casper, Wyo., reports that the great ruckus even seeped into the public print there after a federal court ordered publication of the controversial series suspended.

But much of the nation's media, bemused by the Pentagon story largely because of what the court order may mean to freedom of the press, let slide a simultaneous ruling by another federal judge which has more immediate implications for the future, rather than the past, of Americans at large.

"Americans at large" in this case means anyone who applies for a job, seeks a bank loan, wants to start an insurance policy — anyone who takes any of dozens of routine steps in everyday life and coincidentally has never been arrested for any reason, rightly or wrongly.

RULING ON A CASE pending in the courts for three years, District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell told the FBI that from now on it must stop passing out arrest records from its nearly limitless files to anybody outside the federal governmen unless they are needed strictly for lawenforcement purposes.

The instant response of everyone I have talked to about the ruling has been outright astonishment that the FBI ever was doing anything beyond that. The reputation of the bureau and of J. Edgar Hoover is, or always used to be, for incorruptibility. The acres of files in its possession have been acknowledged to be potentially dangerous, yes, but only if they should fall into the hands of someone less fastidious about guarding them.

As long ago as the mid-60s, those files occupied three floors of the FBI's huge records building — 7,500 filing cabinets plus 5,000 more cabinets of microfilm files. The index to them alone was in a card-file three blocks long. Today, the files include 60 million arrest records on 19 million American citizens. Scary, everyone agrees — but don't worry, it's all held in absolute confidence.

THE THEORY HAS been that the contents of the files, by Hoover's direction, are available only to agents; even the clerks who extract and refile the folders for the bureau were under orders not to read them. Cases pulled for use were supposed to be dispatched to FBI headwuarters in locked boxes. There they were moved about in carts with canvas flaps shielding their contents from passersby. But no one really knew what was in them, not even Hoover himself.

Well, that was the popular version, anyway. Like a lot of other popular versions of recent events, it has turned out not to be as true as it used to be — if it ever was.

WHATEVER SPECIAL security restrictions are kept on the FBI data pertain mainly to raw intelligence dossiers that include unevaluated hearsay, wiretap recordings and informer reports on matters like the ideological and sexual peculiarities of thousands of people who don't even know they are under investigation. Even they are not merely locked up in impenetrable vaults; they figure in security clearances for sensitive government jobs, for example.

But arrest records, collected here from all over the country, have the same injurious potential when they include false arrests, cases in which charges are dropped before reaching trial, instances in which the police were right and convictions were obtained.

IT MAY BE justifiable to make false-arrest records available to police or courts in far-flung jurisdictions. But thare is no way of justifying bandying those records about among local agencies which provide them to purely commercial enterprises, which want the FBI to serve up whatever dirt is available on ordinary citizens doing nothing more suspicious than applying for a mortgage loan.

What we are still waiting on, of course, is a Chief Executive of our federal government who will put the FBIinto legal perspective as a subordinate bureau of the Department of Justice rather than an autonomous agency answerable only to God (and you know who that is).

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Novato Makes No Effort To Repair South Novato Blvd.

South Novato Boulevard is being used as a club or ball bat against the people of Novato.

It is being used by the City of Novato as a weapon in its fight to get a street bond issue passed. Past bond issues have nearly passed, but lacked the necessary two-thirds majority.

South Novato Boulevard is the second most heavily traveled street in the city, second only to the short block of Diablo Avenue between Highway 101 and South Novato Boulevard and Novato Boulevard.

DIABLO AVENUE there has been widened to four travel lanes, two parking lanes, and center left turn lanes.

In the 10 years since the city incorporated, the same thing could have been done to a large section of South Novato Boulevard.

When the subdivisions were planned along the street south of the Nave Shopping Center, right-of-way was dedicated for the widening of the street. It was in the county at the time as the city had not incorporated.

THE MARIN COUNTY Public Works Department designed and engineered the street for widening. It set the grades for Arthur Street, Rowland Boulevard, Sunset Parkway and the other streets that enter South Novato Boulevard. The intersection curbs are on this grade. The manholes are elevated to the planned grade.

The City of Novato has some street construction funds available each year. Had it started on a program 10 years ago of doing one section at a time, a sizeable portion of South Novato Boulevard would have been widened to four travel lanes, parking on each side and sidewalks.

THE SIDEWALKS are the most needed portion of the street. There are two schools on the street with Novato High School students also using it to walk along the edges. There are also four churches with a fifth under construction, which need sidewalks for pedestriantraffic.

In its request for the bonds, the city has allocated so much money for engineering on the boulevard. A recent check with the county public works department revealed that the engineering has been done. The blueprints for the street are gathering dust in the civic center.

THE CITY CAN have these engineering plans free, said Donald Frost, Marin County public works director.

Novato Boulevard presents a greater problem because acquiring the right-of-way will present a problem as so many houses are close to the two-lane street. Yet out at the western city limits where the traffic is small, Novato Boulevard has been widened and resurfaced.

In the meantime, not even a respectable effort has been made to keep up South Novato Boulevard. Residents who must use that street daily cannot avoid all the holes in the pavement, or the jolts of the uneven road. Lesser used streets receive attention, but not the heavily traveled South Novato Boulevard.

THE CITY MUST be using it to make people despair until they will approve a bond issue. Otherwise, why is it left in such a state of disrepair?

The last request for a bond issue put the cost at $15 per household per year. Maybe the city wants to have each taxpayer break more than $15 worth of springs, shock absorbers, and tires each year so that he will see the economy of a bond issue.

Novatan's Dream Of Federal Job Now In Realm Of Reality

Wanting a government job caused George Martinez, 22, of Novato, to take out his citizenship papers after living in the U.S. for 13 years.

Martinez, of 1132 Mirabella Avenue, said that although he passed a civil service examination with a high score, could not get a job because he was not a citizen. He was trying to get a job as a computer operator after completing Control Data School in San Francisco.

George was born in Osaka, Japan while his father, Emanuel, was in the Army there. His father was Spanish descent and his mother, Tani, was Japanese.

His father returned to the United States with his family and they settled in Ashwood, Pa. There Martinez went to high school where he played basketball. He also enjoyed hunting and fishing, shooting his first deer in Pennsylvania.

After high school Martinez spent nearly three years in the Army, being discharged April 22, 1970.

"Since then I have been able to get only part-time work," he said.

That is why he went to school to learn to operate a computer, but still could not get the job he wanted. Then he decided after living here for 13 years and serving in the Army that he would become a citizen.

He made one small mistake. His name was George John Martinez, and when he received his citizenship, he forgot the John, so he is plain George Martinez.

Other new citizens naturalized last month included:

You May Need Cold Cash To Finance Campaigns

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Debt-troubled Democrats and some Republicans, too, can easily find new causes for worry about funding their campaigns for 1972.

Suppliers of goods and services for candidates may demand cash in advance, as radio and television stations already do, or at least substantial deposits.

This warning is found in a book published this week, written by Dr. Herbert E. Alexander, who is probably the nation's most highly regarded authority on campaign financing.

In "Financing the 1968 Election," Alexander quotes the political proverb "that the winners pay their bills, the losers negotiate."

HE WROTE THAT debt settlements for the 1968 campaigns of Hubert H. Humphrey, Eugene J. McCarthy and the late Robert F. Kennedy and other candidates will no doubt lead many suppliers to reexamine policies about extending credit to candidates.

". . . The experience in 1968 may lead to more demand for prepayments or for large deposits, as utilities sometimes now require, or at the least to excessive charges on the reasoning that settlement for a fraction on the dollar may be necessary later," Alexander said.

"When bills are settled, the corporation is in effect making a form of indirect contribution to the campaign, which some companies may willingly do for good will purposes. But when regulated industries, such as telephones or airlines do so, they are opening themselves to federal tightening of the laws or to litigation brought by stockholders or even customers who must pay full rates.

ALEXANDER REPORTED that the McCarthy campaign owed about $1.3 million in September, 1968 after McCarthy had lost the presidential nomination to Humphrey. He said bills under $400 were paid in full, that partial payments were made on others with the understanding that further payments were not expected and that others were settled for an average of about 36 cents on the dollar.

The Kennedy campaign left a deficit of about $3.5 million, according to Alexander, who said some creditors reduced their bills and others negotiated settlements. Fund-raising dinners were held after the election.

The Democratic National Committee picked up debts of $1 million each from the Humphrey and Kennedy preconvention campaigns. These contributed to the $9.3 million debt it still is carrying from 1968.

FEDERAL LAW now forbids campaign contributions by corporations. The loopholes and obsolete nature of existing laws dealing with political campaigns is underscored by many of the facts collected by Alexander. Congress is again at work on campaign reform bills, which may or may not be enacted in time to affect the 1972 campaign.

Under present laws, written mostly in 1925 and 1940-41, no committee operating in more than one state can spend more than $3 million in one year for candidates for federal offices. There is no limit on the number of committees that may be set up and receive the legal maximum of $5,000 from one contributor.

These laws do not affect candidates and their committees in prenomination campaigns or require reporting of their contributions and spending.

OF COMMITTEES from which reports were required, Alexander reported that 222 existed in 1968. He identified 37 as part of the national Republican organization and 93 as part of the national Democratic organization.

He said reports filed with the Clerk of the House showed loans totaling $3.1 million from 43 persons to the Humphrey presidential campaign. Because of the $5,000 ceiling on individuals, he said, these loans were distributed to 48 different committees. Two lenders each put up $240,000 or 48 times $5,000.

For candidates of both parties before and after their conventions, at least 14 contributors gave $100,000 or more and at least 424 gave $10,000 or more.

The best way to appreciate a new Mercedes-Benz is to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.

Motor's conclusion about a veteran of 110,000 miles: "Apart from some loss of edge at the top end this one felt quiet, flexible and free of rattles and the oil pressure needle was always hard on the stop."

At Mercedes-Benz, we're not afraid of what one of our old cars will say about our new cars.

So before you buy a new Mercedes-Benz, we invite you to test drive an old Mercedes-Benz.

Finding a car to test is really no problem. A neighbor or a friend may own one. (Your dealer probably has several on hand.) But we urge you to be selective. Pick one with a substantial accumulation of miles.

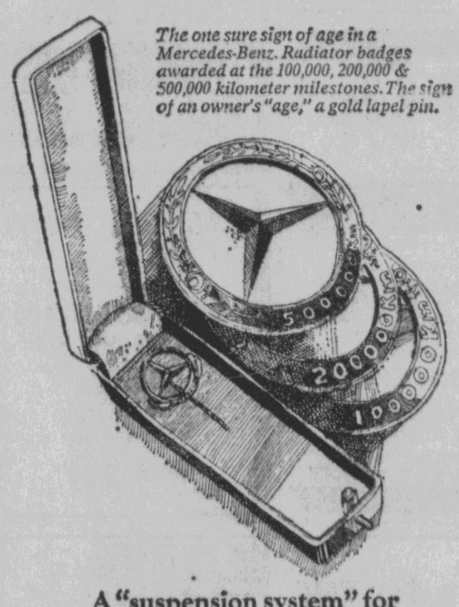
We award them to a Mercedes-Benz after 100,000, 200,000 and 500,000 kilometers. (The European equivalent of 62,500, 125,000 and 312,000 miles.)



The one sure sign of age in a Mercedes-Benz. Radiator badges awarded at the 100,000, 200,000 & 500,000 kilometer milestones. The sign of an owner's "age," a gold lapel pin.

A "suspension system" for the exhaust system

Take your test car down a potholed road and listen for audible protests of age.

A journalist from Motor recently put an eight-year-old Mercedes-Benz roadster to the test. "What impressed me most," he concluded, "was the solidity of the body—not a squeak or rattle to be heard."

We're flattered. But not surprised. Because we view every part of a Mercedes-Benz as a potential rattle.

Instead of bolting body and frame together, we fuse it with 8,000 or more welds.

Window glass rides in a channel that's buttressed in three directions.

We even designed a special suspension system for the exhaust system. Rubber "doughnuts" hold it under tension. A rubber bumper is stationed at every point of contact.

An intriguing contest

Accelerate onto a highway.

Notice how new and tight the engine, drivetrain and suspension feel.

Recently in the Road & Track series "After The New Wears Off," the engineering editor summed up 35,000 miles in his Mercedes-Benz by saying simply, "The car is more impressive than when new."

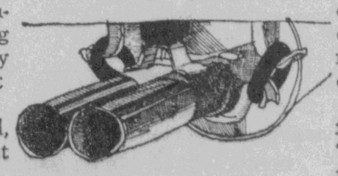
To keep our "new" from wearing off, we engineer the running gear to last as long as the body. A lengthy but intriguing contest indeed.

To make sure it will, vital mechanisms must pass thousands of tests.

We consume more than 40,000 gallons of fuel a month testing every engine before installation. Some for as long as five hours.

After nine successive applications at 135 mph in a "destruction" test, disc brakes turn fiery red. They must endure this torture fifty different times—and suffer no damage.

Even seemingly unimportant items like dashboard knobs must prove their longevity. So they are sliced in half and analyzed by infrared spectography.



Rubber "doughnuts" suspend tailpipes and mufflers under tension, rubber bumpers isolate them from the body. The exhaust system may never rattle.

A revolutionary old car

Today an old Mercedes-Benz bristles with features that still seem revolutionary compared to the '71 cars of other makers.

The reason is simple. Our engineering decisions are made by engineers. Not cost accountants. When they find a way to make an improvement, they make it. Without waiting until it can be made as cheaply as what it replaces.

Take an old Mercedes-Benz through some curves. Unless it's a pre-1930 model, you'll discover the nimble reflexes that come from fully independent suspension. An innovation yet to be discovered by domestic sedans.

Look at the model nameplate. If you spot an "E," the car has something no American car has, an einspritzsystem (German for fuel injection). Developed for Mercedes-Benz grand prix cars, it provides a substantial increase in power with no sacrifice in economy.

Apply the brakes. Mercedes-Benz believes the brakes should be the most powerful part of any car. So we introduced disc brakes in 1961. Put them on all four wheels in 1968. No domestic sedan today offers four disc brakes, even as an option.

Starting from the inside

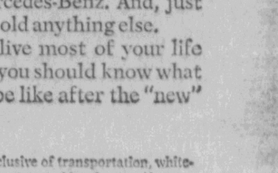
To keep the outside looking new, we start protecting it from the inside.

Bodies are submerged in rust-proofer. They emerge 24 pounds heavier.

But that's not enough for Mercedes-Benz. The inside of body panels that were welded airtight were painted before welding.

Outside, a Mercedes-Benz is protected by four coats of paint and primer. The front gets an extra coat of chip-resistant enamel.

We even insulate the side trim from the body with a strip of rubber. And sheath the clips that attach it with plastic grommets, so that metal can never bite through paint and start rust.



Even body panels that are welded airtight can corrode inside. So before we weld, we spray them with zinc oxide. And paint vital areas by hand.

The "average" Mercedes-Benz: $8,000

There's nothing "average" about a line of automobiles with an average selling price of $8,000.

Building automobiles you can appreciate when they're "old" cars has made our new cars more expensive than most.

There are ten Mercedes-Benz models priced from $5,445 to $8,663*—without options. And six limited editions, largely handcrafted, from $13,032 to $30,352*.

The coupon will bring a full-color brochure of the new Mercedes-Benz models.

In the meantime, be sure and test drive an "old" Mercedes-Benz. And, just for comparison, an old anything else.

After all, you live most of your life with an old car. So you should know what your next car will be like after the "new" wears off.

*West Coast port of entry, exclusive of transportation, whitewalls (shown), other options, state and local taxes, if any.

DRAMA REVIEW

Something Special: It's 'Mother Earth'

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — There's reason for joy again in San Francisco's downtown theater district thanks to the South Coast Repertory Theater of Costa Mesa.

The company in association with the American Conservatory Theater of San Francisco bowed Saturday night in a bright shining musical revue, "Mother Earth," which should keep the Marines' Memorial Theater at capacity for months to come.

"MOTHER EARTH" — A two-act musical revue produced and directed by Ray Golden and a presentation of Michael J. Parsons in association with the American Conservatory Theater. Books and lyrics by Ron Thronson; music by Toni Shearer; Choreography by Lynn Morris; setting by Glenn Holse; lighting and sound by Jim McKie. The cast — Elaine Bankston, Patrice Channel, Ron de Salvo, Michael Devin, Peter Jason, Tip Kelley, Joel Kimmel, Carol Kristy, Jennifer Lee and Toni Shearer.

While similar to "Hair," which had its origins in the younger generation's countercultural movement, "Mother Earth," carries the message of the 1970s — overpopulation, pollution, care of the aged and man's rampant technology.

All these problems are explored at the dawn of the 21st Century. The sketches are composed of biting social comment with lyrics by Ron Thronson and music by Toni Shearer, who are headed for the big time if "Mother Earth" is any measurement of their potential.

The lyrics for the most part are fresh and Miss Shearer's score captures the present musical trend very neatly.

A revue of this type depends upon a quick one-two punch and the cast led by Miss Shearer delivers it very well. It reminds this reviewer of the successful formula of "Hair," "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" and "The Fantasticks."

Miss Shearer's freshness has been transferred to the other nine-members of the cast. They like what they're doing and it shows.

Turning in probably the stellar performance is Carol Kristy whose deeply pitched voice is haunting in "Xanadu," a melody which with any exposure could become a popular tune.

I also liked the approach of Joel Kimmel, Ron de Salvo, a fine young dancer, and Elaine Bankston, who does delightful windup talking lady routines.

The 53 sketches seem to zip by, broken up several times during the two-act show with "Corn on the Macrabe," a burlesque song and dance patter. A sample of the comments: "You can take lead out of gasoline, but you can't get Governor Reagan to pay his taxes."

Helping greatly to tie the continuity of the revue together is the constant change of slide projections above the action on the stage. Alone they're great silent comment on the present ecological crisis.

Even though the revue is billed as a comic speculation 30 years from now, it's rather chilling to see how it might be. An example of this is the sketch showing the latest in women's fashions for the 21st Century — day and nighttime oxygen masks.

Bringing "Mother Earth" to the Bay Area is a good move by ACT and Michael J. Parsons. It's a great little package and good medicine for any theatrical sesson.

King's Daughter In Controversial Debut

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 15-year-old daughter of the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. made her stage debut during the weekend as a swearing prostitute in a biracial play. The audience was more sympathetic than the reviewers.

"She really needs a lot more training before she can play a part like this," said one critic, Steve Warren of radio station WGKA.

Another reviewer said Yolanda King, clad in a "short, short miniskirt" with Roman sandals, appeared "a little hefty."

Steve Clark, theater critic for the Atlanta Constitution, however, was impressed with her "raw talent."

"She appeared calm with a great deal of composure," he said. "She didn't hesitate with the curse words and nothing seemed to bother her."

In the predominantly black audience, which laughed uproariously at times during the Actor's Workshop production of "The Owl and the Pussycat" Saturday night, were Yolanda's mother, Coretta Scott King, and grandfather, the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr.

She played the part of Doris, a hot-tempered prostitute who got involved with an owlish and timid bookstore clerk, named Felix, played by Gregory Patin, 22, of Grand Rapids, Vich.

A Great Guitar Concert Opens Dominican Series

The Marin Music Chest yesterday welcomed back the Romeros, the "royal family of the guitar" as guests for the opening of the annual concert series in San Rafael's Forest Meadows.

The concert by Cledonio Romero and his three sons, Celin, Pepe and Angel, was a return engagement by popular request from association ticketholders. The Romeros made their Music Chest debut during the 1969 season.

Close to 1,100 persons were on hand for the concert in the outdoor setting. Many brought their own chairs or blankets rather than elect to sit on the faded, uncomfortable green benches which sorely need replacing.

The quartet, world famous for its classical style, opened the program with Vivaldi's "Quartet in A Major," a baroque melody ideally suited for guitar.

Then followed individual performances. The senior Romero has an amazing touch — rich and deep — well displayed in Albeniz's "Asturias" and later in his own "Zapateado" and "Fantasia."

The sons are equally at home on the 12-string instrument. Each has a little different style loaded with technical finesse.

Perhaps audience response was greatest as Pepe — considered one of the finest flamenco guitarists — presented two improvisations in the second half of the program.

The guests concluded the program with "Rumbas Gitanas," a traditional flamenco, full of different rhythms which change rapidly. It was an amazing show of togetherness. For an encore, they improvised on another Southern Spain folk tune.

Next guest on the four-program series will be American pianist Eugene List on July 18 — JW

The abstract color slides of West Marin photographer Fred Berensmeier will be shown at 9 p.m. July 1 in the Musical Barber shop in the Fair-Anselm shopping center.

The free show will be accompanied by the Musica di Camera, with Mel Graves on string bass, Clive Hawthorne on flute and percussionistTerry Bozzio.

Two Brothers Fight, One Is Arrested

A fight between two brothers yesterday wound up with one arrest on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and exhibiting a deadly weapon, San Rafael police reported today.

Arthur Sujohn, 26, of 18 Belloreid Avenue, is being held in Marin County Jail in lieu of $6,250 bail. He is scheduled to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, Sujohn got into a fight with his brother Armen J. Sujohn, 22, at 2:50 p.m. at their home. Armen left the house and Arthur took a hammer and chased him down the street. Arthur then smashed the windows in Armen's car, and went into the house. He came outside waving a loaded .22-caliber rifle, neighbors told police.

Concerts Slated At Dominican

The summer concert series at Dominican College will open at 3 p.m: Sunday with a lieder recital by contralto Florence Bierman, accomapnied by pianist Barbara Baum.

The concert will be in Calruega Hall.

It will be the first recital in Marin County for Netherlands-born Miss Bierman, who was this year's winner of the $500 voice award by the San Francisco Musical Club. Miss Baum is a member of the Dominican College music faculty.

Four Hurt In Two Crashes On Bridge

Four persons received minor injuries in two separate accidents early Saturday morning on the Golden Gate Bridge, California Highway Patrol reported.

Ralph John Neugebauer, 43, of San Francisco was treated at Harbor Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for a cut forehead.

Synnovie Banchero of 243 Woodward, Sausalito was to see his own doctor for facial cuts, patrolmen reported.

Both were drivers involved in a four car accident at 12:30 a.m. in the northbound lanes just north of the south tower of the bridge, patrolmen reported.

Drivers of the other two cars were Mary JoAnn Camie, 24, of 1882 Vistazo East, Tiburon and Henry A. Sandbach, 32, of 1333 Seventh Street, Novato, patrolmen reported. All cars were northbound.

After the other accident, David Patrick Robinson, 24, of Castro Valley was treated at Harbor Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for a cut forehead. A passenger, Nancy D'Agosta, 23, of San Diego, was treated at the same hospital for cut cheek and knee.

Their car was southbound on the bridge at 1:55 a.m. Saturday when it collided with cars driven by James Patrick Keefe, 28, of 87 Ethel Avenue, Mill Valley; Charles Jones, 24, of San Francisco and Cheryle Eva English, 24, of San Francisco, all southbound on the bridge.

Annual Check

Suit Over Refusal To Treat Man

The parents of a 25-year-old man who has been in and out of mental hospitals for the past three years today filed suit charging that the Marin Community Mental Health Center will not accept their "gravely disabled son."

In a petition filed in Marin Superior Court, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold F. Linane of San Rafael quote Dr. John Guerrant, director of the mental health center, as saying about their son, James:

He "will either kill himself or take some else's life and then the community mental health center can hold him."

According to the Linanes' attorney, Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., the parents only filed the petition because they were completely stymied in their efforts to have their son, who has a long history of bizarre behavior, hospitalized.

(Under current state law, mental patients must go through a screening process at the local center before being sent to state hospitals, such as the one in Napa.)

The Linanes say, in their petition for a writ of mandate asking that a conservator be named for their son so that he can be hospitalized, that he has been repeatedly released from the local mental health center.

The most recent incident occurred last Wednesday, according to the suit, when young Linane was found by a policeman in the middle of a San Rafael street. He told the officer he "was looking for a diamond," according to the suit. The officer took him to the parents' home, but the Linanes said their son left again and was found "hopping down Canal Street" in San Rafael.

The suit says that the policeman who picked him up the second time, was rebuffed when he tried having young Linane admitted to the center, where the staff told the officer, according to the suit, that Linane was "well known to them. . . and that they wouldn't accept him because prior treatment had been unsuccessful."

In the petition, the Linanes list the history of their son's behavior beginning in May 1968, when he was found on a surfboard five miles off the coast of Oahu, Hawaii. He said he was "Looking for his girlfriend," according to the suit.

The Linanes said that later that year, their son slit his throat and wrists and stuffed feathers in his mouth.

While in the same hospital, the Linanes said that their son, in an attempt to show that he was not biased, "had a Negro patient regurgitate in his mouth."

He has threatened his mother with a knife and choked her around the neck, they said.

While in Marin County jail earlier this month on traffic warrants, young Linane ate leather from his shoe, offering as an explanation that he was hungry, the petition said.

"He persists in hopping as he exits from buildings," it continued, and has twice hurt himself by falling.

His "behavior has been so bizarre and potentially violent" that people are unwilling to let him live with them, the petition says, so that he sleeps outdoors in a sleeping bag.

He also "feels that clothing is unimportant" and there have been "numerous episodes of total and partial nudity," according to the suit.

The Linanes charge that the community mental health center is failing to carry out the spirit of the legislation by refusing to file a petition so that young Linane can be committeed.

Despite his behavior and the recommendation of at least two psychiatrists, nothing has been done, they say.

A hearing on the petition was set for 9 a.m. July 27 before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

Fill Permit Asked For South San Pedro

The Marin County Public Works Department has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to construct a 17,000 cubic yard fill and riprap bank for improvements on South San Pedro Road.

The work is part of the next phase of joint county and San Rafael improvement of the thoroughfare. Any protests against the permit should be submitted in triplicate to the Army at 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco, before July 18, according to Col. Charles E. Roberts, district engineer.

Hartke Says Nixon's Plan In Vietnam A Subterfuge

President Nixon's plan to wind down the war by "Vietnamization" was branded yesterday as "purely a plan to continue the war by subterfuge and deception" by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind.

The senator, in a speech prepared for a brunch at Temple Rodef Sholom in San Rafael, said that Nixon "intends, in fact, to prolong the war indefinitely, substituting Asian conscripts for American in the deeply cynical expectation that lower casualty figures are all that the American people care about in our Indochina policy."

Hartke, asserting that the President's plan still was "an attempt to win a military victory," declared that "a war financed entirely by America and made tactically feasible only by American air power is an American war.

"If 1.1 million South Vietnamese troops armed with the very best and latest American equipment and enjoying total domination of the skies cannot provide for their own defense against an enemy which they outnumber 11 to one, then Vietnamization is a concept so empty of hope that we had best abandon it before another drop of American blood or another dollar of American treasure is wasted on it."

Citing more than 50,000 American war dead — 18,000 since Nixon took office, Hartke blamed the war on "a folly and a blindness of leaders more concerned with geopolitical abstractions than with the national ideals they had sworn to uphold — leaders more concerned with their own place in history than with America's."

"Vietnam is a disease from which we may not recover," the senator declared. "We are dying of Vietnam, and the physician tells us that we must not take the only available antidote to its poison because the cure for us may be noxious to military adventurers and war profiteers in Saigon."

Nine Hurt In Four San Rafael Accidents

One person was hospitalized and eight others injured in four accidents during the weekend in San Rafael, police reported today.

George Edward Johnstone, 55, of 31 Ray Court, San Rafael, was reported in good condition at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco, with a broken right leg.

Johnstone, eastbound on a motorcycle on Second Street at 9:20 a.m., Saturday, collided with a northbound car on Shaver Street, police reported. The car was driven by Richard Michael Nucian, 26, of 407 First Street, Apt. 2, San Rafael.

Five persons were treated at Marin General Hospital for minor injuries received at 7:13 p.m. Saturday in a two car accident at Third and Grand Avenue.

Sherry Darlene Romero, 25, of Lower Lake, Lake County, driver of a westbound car on Third Street, was treated for a cut lip.

Christa Marie Schaefer, 24, of 55 Fairfax Street, San Rafael, driver of a car southbound on Grand Avenue, was treated for cuts and bruises to her face.

Passengers, Ruth Ann Taylor, 30, was treated for a bruised nose; Patricia Taylor, 11, treated for a bruised head; Charles Taylor, 2, treated for cuts on forehead, all of 23 Center Street, San Rafael.

Rudolph Schroder, 22, of 19 Eucalyptus Lane, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut forehead and chin.

The two were riding west in front of 211 Jewell Street on a bicycle when it hit a big dog and upset them, at 9:05 a.m. Saturday, police reported.

Christopher Paul Denny, 18, of 1353 Monte Marie Avenue, Novato, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a sprained left ankle.

He was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Douglas Wayne Jerve, 19, of 1224 Olive Avenue, Novato, which was eastbound on Bellam Boulevard at Highway 101 offramp at 9 a.m. Saturday, when it collided with a car driven by Louis Joseph Fichera, 59, of 20 Stetson Avenue, Kentfield, according to police.

Man Booked On Suspicion Of Felony Wife Beating

A Forest Knolls man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of felony wife beating.

Lucien B. Vincilione, 63, was arrested on suspicion of beating his wife, Agnes N. Vincilione, 58, at their Baranca Road residence, Marin County sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Mrs. Vincilione told them that her husband arrived home for a cocktail party in Larkspur about 1:15 a.m. yesterday and, for no apparant reason began beating her about the head and face.

He then went to bed, she said.

She was later threated at Marin General Hospital for multiple bruises of the face and chest and possibly broken ribs.

Deputies said Vincilione denied the beating and said he found his wife lying at the bottom of the stairs at the entrance to their residence when he arrived home.

He posted $1,875 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Wednesday.

Major Arrested In Parts Theft

TRAVIS AFB, Calif. (UPI)— An Air Force Major has been placed under house arrest charged with stealing more than $150,000 worth of electronic equipment from transport planes he flew between the United States and Vietnam.

Maj. Lewis H. Ellison Jr., 39, of Glen Ridge, N.J., was being held in his quarters, Air Force officials said Sunday.

A military announcement said Ellison was charged with removing equipment from helicopters being transported to and from the war zone.

Four-Day Turnout Called 'Good' For Novato's Western Weekend

Novato's Western Weekend Country Fair closed its four-day run yesterday with a crowd of several thousand filling the fairground.

There was no estimate of the four-day turnout, but Dorothy Merla, publicity director, described it as "good."

The Novato Chamber of Commerce won the tug of war from the Novato Jaycees and the Kentfield firemen defeated the Novato firemen in a waterball fight.

One of the hits of the day was a horseshoe tournament with 20 entries. Winners in singles competition were Donald Madden, Gene Naugle and Donald Cornell and in the doubles, Gene and Robert Naugle.

About 2,100 persons attended the Novato Horsemen's rodeo where Arley Haymen of 7 June Lane, Novato, won the greenhorn calf tying event.

Winners in the professional events were: Bill Nelson, San Francisco, saddle bronc riding; Alvin Deal, Modesto, bareback riding; Bill Earle, Oakdale, bull riding.

Donnie Yandell, Lower Lake, calf roping; Bob Ragsdale, Chowchilla, steer wrestling; Mike Quick, Hemet, and Dan Branco, Chowchilla, team roping; and Patti Garcia, Marysville, girls barrel race.

ORDINANCE NO. 1027

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Chapter 15.56, Section 15.56.010 of the San Rafael Municipal Code, which is entitled, "NOTICE," is hereby amended to read as follows:

"15.56.010. Notice. Appeal may be made to the City Council from any decision, determination or requirement of the subdivision committee, planning commission or City Engineer by any person, by filing a notice thereof in writing with the City Clerkwithin ten (10) days after such decision or determination or requirement is made. Such notice shall set forth in detail the action and ground by and upon which the party deems himself aggrieved."

DIVISION 2. This ordinance is an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and one of urgency, and shall take effect immediately. The facts constituting the urgency are that at the present time Section 15.56.010 of the Municipal Code, City of San Rafael, provides that only a subdivider may appeal from any decision, determination or requirement of the subdivision committee, planning commission or City Engineer, and said section does not provide for equal protection under the laws. Furthermore, there are certain subdivision actions now pending before the City which, if under the present ordinance were passed, interested citizens of the City of San Rafael would have no right of appeal. Therefore, it is in the best interests of the citizens of San Rafael that said section be amended to provide for the appeal, as set forth above, and if further subdivisions are allowed without allowing the citizens of the City of San Rafael to appeal such decisions, safety and general welfare will be jeopardized.

s PAUL BETTINI, Mayor
/s MARION A. GRADY, City Clerk

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 1027 was adopted as an ordinance of the City of San Rafael at a regular meeting of the Council of the City of San Rafael held on the 7th day of June, 1971, by the following vote, to wit:
AYES: COUNCILMEN — Barbier, Jensen, Miskimen, Mulryan and Mayor Bettini
NOES: COUNCILMEN — None
ABSENT: COUNCILMEN — None

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Visitations In Trance Could Be Product Of Migraine, Epilepsy

J.L.B. Writes: "I am a 67-year-old woman in good health and considered intelligent. So please do not consider my question ridiculous. For 35 years, I've had occasional 'spells' that can best be described as half-trances. During these bouts, I see 'little' people friendly small creatures — one of whom I recognize by name.

"THESE TRANCES occur even when I'm playing bridge. They do not affect my behavior, although I have feelings of unreality — as though a thin veil had been dropped over my mind. Sometimes they occur frequently; then a year or more will elapse without one. Can you possibly tell me what causes these bouts and what, if anything, can be done to prevent them? One of my sisters has also had such visitations."

This reminds us of the Lilliputians in Gulliver's Travels. Jonathan Swift's characters were 6 inches tall, but we do not know whether they were the product of a vivid imagination, dream or hallucination. A somewhat similar illusion was discussed by Lewis Carroll in Alice in Wonderland.

ALICE HAD FANTASTIC dreams. In some, she was remarkably tall, in others extremely small. Some of her impressions were subtle, as when she fancied herself two persons and was puzzled about her true identity.

The latter sensations are not uncommon in certain types of epilepsy and migraine. They may occur before or during an attack. In some instances, these sensations replace the bout and are called epileptic or migraine equivalents. The victim feels he is changing in size or floating through space like a feather. Objects in sight may come closer or recede and the sense of time may also be affected. An electroencephalogram may answer our reader's question.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

ABSCESSED TOOTH

T.R. writes: If an infection in the root of a tooth shows up under X-ray but does not bother the person, can the infection travel and cause pain in the arm on the affected side?

REPLY

An abscessed tooth may exist without causing trouble. On the other hand, infections are not normal and usually affect the body in time. These nests of bacteria may be responsible for distress elsewhere in the body. There is no connection, however, between an infected molar on the right side and right-sided distress. Focal infections never lake sides.

DIGITALIS FOR HEART

S. B. writes: If you once start taking digitalis, do you have to continue it?

REPLY

Digitalis is given to correct certain irregularities of the heart beat and to slow the beat of a failing heart. Some users can stop the drug if the heart action returns to normal whereas others need it the rest of their life.

PERSONALITY CHANGES

L.A. writes: Would hardening of the arteries cause a 57-year-old man to become mean? This fellow won't listen to anyone's opinion and blows up over anything and everything. He used to have a good disposition and was even tempered.

REPLY

Yes Some develop marked changes in personality after a stroke due to hardening of the cerebral arteries. The change, which may take place overnight, is not necessarily associated with paralysis or weakness of an arm or a leg. An infection may also be making the man irritable.

Chavez Plans Melon Boycott

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Cesar Chavez is threatening to have his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee lead a nationwide boycott of cantaloupes.

The threat came as a result of a contract dispute with the F.H. Hougue Co., which the union is picketing here and in California. Chavez said he would call a boycott if Hougue does not sign a contract with the union.

As Chavez talked with newsmen the past weekend, high school and college students picked cantaloupes in the field, replacing farm workers who picketed the Hougue farm. The 350 students were paid $2 an hour.

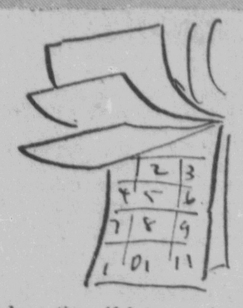
LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Guarantee Of Speedy Trials



The right to a speedy trial is a basic guarantee of the constitution. It is strengthened by laws giving those charged with criminal offenses a right to trial within set limits. These are within 30 days of arraignment on a misdemeanor charge, and with 60 days on a felony charge. This keeps the accused from waiting in jail for a long time if he cannot make bail.

California, unlike many other states, has set periods for bringing cases to trial. If the case is not heard within the 30 or 60 day period, the case must be thrown out. The defendant has the right to "waive time," to ask for a delay so that he can better prepare his defense.

The guarantee of speedy trial also extends to any criminal proceeding even before the defendant is arrested. In one case, Harry Hype sold some narcotics to an undercover agent in January 1968. The police were trying to learn more about the source of narcotics. They also wanted to locate others who might be involved.

In July 1968 a warrant was issued against Harry. The police looked for him at his home but couldn't find him. They knew Harry was enrolled at an adult school, but they didn't arrest him there. Nor did they make any move to arrest him during the next 19 months. Harry continued to have ordinary contacts with his friends and family. He even worked for the county for a year before his arrest.

The court ruled the delay in making the arrest was unreasonable. It was denial of speedy trial.

After three years on a felony charge and one year on a misdemeanor, the statute of limitation takes effect. The time may be extended if the defendant leaves the state or secretes himself to avoid the legal process. There is no limitation on charges of murder or treason.

Delays in bringing an accused to trial or to arrest can hurt his ability to preserve evidence to defend himself. In civil cases, especially those with an equity claim, delays can bar the suit.

After suit is brought, the court may dismiss a case for delay in bringing it to trial. The court has broad discretion to dismiss if the plaintiff appears to be unnecessarily delaying. (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Plans To Map Smog Announced

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Space scientists and state air pollution experts announced plans Sunday to map smog's new inroads over Los Angeles and San Francisco.

A three-year study involving 12 testing and mapping flights a year will pool information at UC Riverside's state air pollution research center.

Via charts and hhotographs the antipollution team hopes to pinpoint existing, potential and new sources of air pollution and in what concentrations smog is infiltrating new urban areas.

Bridging the communications gap

In Japan they read from top to bottom and from right to left. Here we do it little differently. The point being, does it really matter how people read so long as they are accurately informed? One of the I-J's daily problems in reporting the news is to determine what is genuinely new and what may be merely new to us. Also to consider what is significant to all readers and what is important, locally, to readers in say, Novato, Mill Valley or San Rafael.

This is particularly true today when people with differing value standards are confronting one another at an accelerating rate. And when the rate of events is becoming more and more complex.

The I-J then, is faced daily with a waiting public of widely diverse tastes and with a world which creates an increasing traffic of information.

To bridge this gap between reader and events is our daily job. The traffic keeps coming. Our columns direct it to your eye. And the bridge, we hope, leads you to a better understanding of today's fast-changing world.

Transfer Of Soledad Trio Is Rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Superior Judge Walter F. Carpeneti won't allow the Soledad Brothers to transfer from San Quentin to San Francisco County Jail.

Defense attorneys requested the move Friday, arguing that it was necessary to help them prepare their defense of George Jackson, Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette, three convicts accused of murdering Soledad Prison guard.

The judge agreed with a report from the sheriff's office, which said county jail facilities were inadequate to contain the three men.

The judge also denied a motion that files from Soledad Prison's adjustment center be produced in the trial.

And the judge denied another motion that the defense be furnished with a copy of the transcript and the names of witnesses from the Monterey County grand jury investigation of the Jan. 13 shooting of three black Soledad inmates by a guard.

At the end of Friday's pretrial hearing, the defendants chanted "power to the people" and other revolutionary slogans, provoking a partisan demonstration among the 60 demonstrators.

Judge Carpeneti, who set the next hearing for June 25, sentenced one of the demonstrators, Stephen C. Rasmussen, 20, to one day in jail for contempt.

Final Creek Project Plans To Be Eyed

Final plans for the fourth phases of the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project will be reviewed June 30 by a Ross citizens committee on flood control.

The Army Corps of Engineer plans call for extending creek work next year through Ross to a point just south of the San Anselmo city boundary.

Work this year will bring the concrete channel from where work ended last year (1800 feet upstream of the College Avenue Bridge) to a point 200 downstream of the Ross Post Office.

Next year's phase is expected to cost more than $1 million, Charles Murphy, county flood control engineer, said yesterday.

The plans must be approved prior to Aug. 1 by the Army, the Town of Ross, the county and the Ross Valley Flood Control board, he said.

According to John H. Chase, chairman of the Ross citizen's advisory committee, the plan will be on display at town hall from June 28 to July 9.

Murphy said he has tentatively set a meeting for the afternoon of June 30 with the flood zone board to review the plans, preceding the 8 p.m. citizens' committee meeting at town hall.

Closely related to the plan, though not yet a part, is a Ross demand that the flood zone pay $350,000 for improvement of drainage along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Ross Common.

The flood zone board has rejected the demand it pay the total amount and has requested the federal government to pick up a part.

Small Arms Area Still 'Closed Off'

Mailliard, Clausen 'No' To Viet Bill

By BENJAMIN SHORE
(I-J Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Republican Reps. William S. Mailliard and Den H. Clausen, who present Marin County, were among the solid majority in the House which defeated an amendment calling for a total U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam by Dec. 31.

The amendment lost 158 to 256 in a vote last week. Congressmen favoring the setting of a withdrawal date, however, will seek more such votes as other military-related bills come before the House this session.

Clausen, speaking on the floor of the House, ciriticized the so-called "end the war" amendment on the grounds that, because of its language, it did not offer congressmen precisely that choice. Specifically, Clausen said, the amendment contained a clause prohibiting the measure from interfering with the President's role as military commander-in-chief.

"How do we tell the thousands who wrote, called, wired and visited us here on the Hill that they were deceived or misled or misinformed?" Clausen asked.

"I believe that a vast majority of the members of both houses of Congress would leap at the chance to vote for responsible legislation that offered the President some kind of policy guidance to end the war. This is the constitutional role of the Congress in matters of foreign policy.

"Until such time as Congress assumes that role, I shall continue to suggest to the President and his key foreign policy advisers initiatives I believe will hasten our troop withdrawal program and end the war in Vietnam," Clausen said.

However, he has declined to discuss publicly the suggestions, he has made to the President.

Mailliard, prior to the vote on the withdrawal amendment, broke with the Nixon Administration over the ABM issue and supported an unsuccessful attempt to strike from the military budget funds earmarked for further deployment of the missile system.

Mailliard said he supports continued research and development of the ABM but not further construction of firing sites around the country.

"I hope the ABM isn't necessary," he said, referring to the possibility of arms limitations agreements with the Soviet Union.

"And I also have some doubt that it will work, anyway."

Clausen voted for full funding of the ABM program, and both Congressmen voted against an unsuccessful effort to kill funding of the controversial B-1 supersonic bomber project.

Advisers To Sell Railroad's Land

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kuhn, Loeb & Co., financial advisers to the Penn Central Railroad, will coordinate the sale of the railroad's choice Park Avenue real estate in New York City, the railroad's trustees said Sunday.

The trustees announced June 2 that the 29 acres in the vicinity of Grand Central Station and running northward on either side of Park Avenue would be sold.

The railroad received $21.2 million in rent last year from the properties, which are blanketed by three mortgages totaling about $425 million.

Soviet Union Makes Slow Auto Progress

By PETER WORTHINGTON
Toronto Telegram News Service

The automobile is a sort of forbidden fruit in the Soviet Union — something to admire, even to ride in, but not to own.

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia tells the story of what happened to a citizen who rented a small Moskevich car for a Sunday drive in the country.

It's one of those moralizing accounts, filled with comradely indignation.

Renting cars is new to the Soviet scene; the guiding ethic is that the customer is usually wrong.

In this case, despite assurances that the car was in "first-class shape," the speedometer packed up before the chap had driven home. Then there was an ominous sound from the engine, of a connecting rod snapping.

For his brief excursion, the unfortunate chap had to pay 10 rubles (10.40) for the tow truck and 70 rubles ($84) for the car rental. Since the speedometer had broken, he was also charged for 500 kilometers, even though he'd had the car out only an hour.

Since it would take about eight months to get a new fender through regular channels, the wretched fellow was told he'd have to pay rent while the car was off the road — the equivalent of $840.

Wisely, he chose to delve into the black-market for a fender, at 10 times the normal price.

Small wonder that car-hiring has virtually been discontinued in the U.S.S.R. and now is in limbo waiting for officialdom to invent comprehensive insurance plans, and the car drop-off system.

The Soviet Union has had a lot of problems in its bid to enter the auto age.

Khrushchev didn't think much of cars, and felt they polluted a country. He opposed private ownership of them and for awhile in the USSR people who managed to get an auto ran the risk of jealous neighbors smashing windows and cutting tires at night.

In 1966, Khrushchev's successors, Brezhnev and Kosygin, announced that the dawn of the private automobile was about to break, and hold on to your "shlapkas" citizens.

Deals were made with Renault of France and Fiat of Italy to help build plants that would churn out popular autos for individual purchase.

The first of the modified Fiats (renamed Zhiguli) came off the assembly line last year — about 20,000 of them instead of the planned-for 30,000.

This year, the goal has been re-adjusted from 330,000 to 160,000 Zhiguli cars.

Of the 250,000 cars produced in the U.S.S.R. in 1970, about 30 per cent were slated for private ownership, 30 per cent for export, and the remainder for official use.

The annual production of popular cars is expected to reach one million in the USSR by 1975 — about what American production was in 1916. Put another way, it means that by 1975 there will be more autos in the hands of the people than there are tanks under control of the military.

Despite high expectations, the Soviet auto industry has experienced little except problems. And this will intensify, it seems, since very little concern is being voiced about improving highways and other facilies.

Although the USSR occupies one-sixth of the earth's surface, it has less than one million miles of roads — about twice that of France. Service stations are still as rare as oases in the Sahara.

In Moscow, for instance, where seven million people live, there are only 13 repair garages. In Donetsk (population 900,000) there isn't a solitary service station, according to Izvestia.

A big problem seems to be the built-in bureaucracy of the Soviet system. Up to 40 ministries and departments are involved in approving supplies to auto factories. There's also a chronic shortage of skilled workmen.

Customers have had to wait up to five years for a car — which has to be paid for in advance.

Now the price of a car has been boosted (which is retroactive for those who've paid for, but not picked up their cars).

The "new, improved" Volga, for instance, will cost foreigners who have hard currency about $2,000. Soviet citizens will have to pay the equivalent of $10,000. A Volga resembles a 1938 Plymouth.

The Zhiguli will cost Soviet buyers over $6,000. Its counterpart in Italy, the Fiat, costs around $1,700. The enormity of the price sinks in when one realizes that a car costs about four years' pay — based on the average monthly wage of 130 rubles.

Drug Center Relocation On Agenda

The San Rafael Planning Commission will be asked to approve a use permit to relocate the Center Point drug treatment facility, at the commission's meeting in the city hall at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The antidrug center hopes to move from 805 D Street into larger quarters in the former Marin Manor rest home at 812 D Street.

Other items on the commission agenda will include:

TOWNHOUSES — Review of a planned unit development calling for 107 townhouses on 27 acres at the end of Freitas Parkway will be presented by developers.

SCHOOLS — The commission will review proposed additions to the Oak View and Miller Creek schools.

STREETS — The commission will be asked to choose among alternative plans for dedicated street patterns in East San Rafael.

APARTMENTS — Owner R. D. Lang will seek a use permit and architectural approval for 64 apartment units in five buildings at 240 Canal Street.

MARIN GRADE — Developers, turned down earlier on a five-lot subdivision of 2.6 acres, will seek approval for a four-lot plan.

REVIEW — Discussion of environment and design review policies, carried over from June 1, will be resumed.

Nader Sees Lockheed Aid Endless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader testified today that if Congress decided to rescue Lockheed from bankruptcy, it had better be prepared to subsidize the company into the indefinite future.

The consumer advocate and an associate, James Welch, testified before the Senate Banking Committee in opposition to a Nixon administration bill to guarantee loans of up to $250 million to Lockheed.

Nader and Welch argued that Lockheed, the nation's biggest defense contractor, would be back before Congress asking for more and more aid because the market for commercial airliners simply could not support more than one manufacturer.

Lockheed has asked for the government guarantee to repay bank loans to enable it to make the L1011 Tristar airbus.

Without a guaranteed loan, Lockheed and the Nixon Administration have told the committee the firm faces certain bankruptcy.

Nader and Welch contended that problems presented by Lockheed's troubles in the future, if it got the loan guarantee, would outweigh difficulties its bankruptcy would cause the economy.

"The heart of the matter is that there is not sufficient market demand to support the number of the major commercial airframe makers we have in this country," they said.

Without "direct subsidies" or defense contracts geared specifically to keep Lockheed in business, "the commercial side of the company will likely fail in any event," Nader and Welch said.

The two criticized what they called Lockheed's "galling" attitude in refusing to give senators full data about the firm's finances and its prospects.

Opposition to the loan guarantee also was expressed by three economists —Robert Weintraub of the University of California at Santa Barbara, Thomas Gale Moore of Michigan State University and Alan Greenspan, president of a consulting firm.

Edward A. White, chairman and president of the Bowmar Instrument Corp., with plants in Fort Wayne, Ind., Acton, Mass., Newbury Park, Calif. and Ottawa, Canada, urged approval of the bill. Bowmar is a subcontractor on the L1011 project.

The 15-member Banking Committee appeared closely divided over the bill. Seven members were believed to be against or leaning against it and six in favor, with the balance held by two Republicans —Sens. William V. Roth of Delaware and Robert W. Packwood of Oregon.

Both have had sharp questions for witnesses favoring the loan guarantee, and, as Republicans, both could expect to come under strong White House pressure to vote for the proposal.

Some democrats, however, would prefer to see the proposal killed in committee.

Cloture Petition Filed On Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate leaders moved today to shut off further debate in a bid to keep the Selective Service Act from expiring automatically in 10 days.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield filed the cloture petitition. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, joined in the move to invoke the gag rule for the first time in his career.

Unless the proposed two-year extension passes by June 30 President Nixon's authority to conscript young men will expire automatically.

A vote on the cloture motion will come Wednesday. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, who is leading the fight against the draft, said he was confident the move would fail, at least on the first try. A two-thirds majority of those present and voting will be needed to shut off the debate.

Although the Senate is in its sixth week of debate on the draft bill, Gravel and other opponents have not had to engage in major filibuster tactics since disposal of dozens of amendments has taken up virtually all of this time.

But Gravel vowed to filibuster the draft extension night and day if needed until the Senate approves legislation to cut off funds for the Vietnam War. He contended the Senate's refusal to set a deadline for withdrawal of American forces was thwarting the will of a majority of the American people.

Two more end-the-war amendments were expected to come to a vote this week, with opponents of the war still three or four votes short of a majority.

The first amendment is sponsored by Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., who voted against last week's amendments to set Dec. 31, 1971 and June 1, 1971 deadlines for an end to American involvement.

Cook's proposal would end funding of the war nine months after its enactment. If no firm agreement on release of prisoners of war is reached two months after enactment, the deadline would be suspended.

If the Cook measure fails, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., will seek a vote on a nonbinding resolution calling for withdrawal before July 31, 1972, but not requiring it.

Fitzsimmons Elected Boss Of Teamsters

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)— The Teamsters Union announced today that its jailed president, James R. Hoffa, had resigned and Frank Fitzsimmons was named to take his place as head of the two million member union.

The election took place at a meeting of the general executive board of the union, and news was quickly relayed to President Nixon, who was vacationing at nearby Key Biscayne. Nixon then drove to the Playboy Plaza Hotel for a private meeting with board members.

Fitzsimmons, executive vice president of the union, has headed the organization since Hoffa went to jail March 7, 1967 to serve a sentence for jury tampering.

The action had been expected. On June 3 Hoffa announced he would not be a candidate for reelection to the office he had continued to hold while in jail.

The announcement was made by Allen Biggs, public relations director of the Teamsters. He said the Executive Board received a telegram from Hoffa saying he had stepped down, and immediately elected Fitzsimmons.

Fitzsimmons will serve until the Teamsters' convention in Miami next month when the membership will elect a new president. He is considered a cinch to continue in office.

There have been several published reports to the effect that the Justice Department was unwilling to grant a parole to Hoffa as long as he remains president of the organization, and his decision to resign was a possible prelude to his release from jail where he has been described as a model prisoner.

White House press secretary Ronald Zeigler said Fitzsimmons had invited the President to meet with the board here to consider proposed constitutional changes prior to their convention.

Carmel Booth To Convention's Post

I-J Special Report

SAN DIEGO — Carmel Booth, former mayor of San Anselmo and now in her second term as Lake County treasurer and tax collector, was elected treasurer of the California Association of County Treasurers, at the group's semiannual convention here.

Mrs. Booth was the first woman elected to the post in recent years, she said.

Bonbright To Lead Commission

Marin County Personnel Commission has elected I. Wayland Bonbright as chairman and Mrs. John Finn III as vice chairman, according to Maren Rinne, county personnel director.

At the commission's regular meeting Thursday, the panel accepted a report from Public Works Director Donald R. Frost on his department's response to commission recommendations last month concerning assignments and training in the roads division. The commission told its staff to report in August on how the changes are working, Mrs. Rinne said.

When school closes don't let your child's mind close with it.

We can help your child become a better student beginning in June. If your child does not show the interest in school that you would like to see or, if your child would like to take a step ahead; enroll him now in the Sullivan Reading Center Summer School. The Center offers accelerated learning programs in Math and Reading using the highly successful Sullivan programmed teaching methods.

What Parents say about the Sullivan Program:

Mrs. Charles Wendell, San Francisco, Ca.: Private tutoring, interest in the child and patience with the children is a virtue with the Sullivan Centers. Troy has developed confidence in himself now to the point where he will try to read anything; whereas before, he was afraid to say the word because he was just guessing. The teachers at Sullivan treat these children as if they were their own.

Mrs. Henry Tiedemann, San Rafael, Ca.: Daniel shows improvement, most important of all to us, in his attitude toward scholastic studies. He seems more serious and thorough while doing homework and research for projects. What he developed in Reading at the Center seems to be carrying over into his other school subjects.

Hours are scheduled for reading, math and if you wish, reading and math together. Your child can attend for one or two hour sessions on days convenient to the family schedule.

Wind Helps Curveball, Says Steve Stone

Giants' 5-Game Sweep Hikes Lead To 7 Games

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The much-maligned wind gusts of Candlestick Park can be irritating to many ballplayers and beneficial to others.

Rookie Steve Stone freely admitted he was aided by the wind Sunday when he blanked San Diego on three hits to give the San Francisco Giants a doubleheader sweep. The Giants won the opener 6-2 and the nightcap 2-0.

"The wind made my curveball break tremendously," Stone said after firing his second shutout and second complete game of the season.

"My curve went into the dirt during the first few innings. Then I began to adjust my delivery. I threw my curve about head-high and it would break to the batters' knees. It was definitely my best pitch of the day."

Dave Roberts, the Padres' losing pitcher in the second game, insists his performance was badly hampered by the wind. Ordinarily an excellent control pitcher, Roberts walked six men in seven innings.

"The wind was so bad that I almost balked out there one time when I was just standing in my stretch position," Roberts said. "I had to really dig my feet into the mound to prevent the wind from pushing me over. If I wanted to hit the outside corner with a pitch, I'd have to aim it toward the inside because of the wind factor."

The twin victory Sunday gave the Giants a sweep of their five-game weekend series with the Padres and moved San Francisco seven games ahead of second place Los Angeles in the National League West.

San Diego, now 23-46, fell 22 games off the pace in the division cellar.

Lefthander Fred Norman of the Padres had a 2-0 lead in the opener until he gave up Bernie Williams' first big league homer in the seventh inning. Then the Giants rallied for five runs off Norman and reliever Bob Miller in the eighth.

Willie McCovey's three-run homer in a pinchhitting role was the finising blow of the five-run uprising. RBI singles by Dick Dietz and Al Gallagher had given San Francisco a 3-2 advantage prior to McCovey's 11th blast of the season.

Jerry Johnson saved the opening game victory for Don McMahon (5-3), who threw one scoreless inning of relief of starter Ron Bryant. Norman (01) took the loss.

The Giants scored single runs in fifth and sixth against Roberts, whose errant pickoff throw opened the gates to the first San Francisco run. Rightfielder Ollie Brown picked up Roberts' bad toss deep in foul territory and then heaved the ball past the entire infield to let Ken Henderson score.

Hal Lanier opened the sixth with a double, went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Stone and came across on Chris Speier's sacrifice fly.

Stone fanned 11 Padres in throwing his first complete game since April 23. He improved his record to 5-5.

The luckless Roberts has a 57 record despite allowing only four earned runs in his last four starts. In one stretch last year, the Padres scored only 16 runs for him in 10 games.

U.S. OPEN

Nicklaus, Trevino Shooting It Out

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI)—You would think a guy who has won two U.S. Open titles, three Masters, two PGA and two British Open championships would be used to a little pressure.

But according to Jack Nicklaus "there is always pressure" and he expects to feel it today when he goes into an 18-hole playoff with Lee Trevino for the 71st U.S. Open golf championship.

The two former U.S. Open champions, who ironically share the record of 275 for the lowest 72-hole score in the Open, both missed crucial putts on the 18th hole of the Merion Golf Club Sunday to tie at the end of regulation play at even par 280. (List of final scores and winnings on page 33.)

Nicklaus knew when he was walking to the 17th green on Sunday that Trevino had missed a seven foot par putt on the 18th to fall back into a tie at even par.

All Nicklaus needed to win was a birdie on either the 17th or 18th. But he was to have troubles of his own, with a pressure-packed five foot putt for a par on the 17th after his tee shot on the par 3 hole went into a trap.

Then on 18, he had a putt of 15 feet to sink for a birdie to win. Nicklaus said he was composed and "felt I was going to make it."

The putt slid past and the quest for the $30,000 first prize continued on to today.

With all he had to do to gain the tie, Nicklaus was asked if he felt he was "pressureproof."

"That'll be the day," he said. "There is always pressure. You learn how to handle it.

"Sure, you get nervous. There is always pressure in our line. I don't think I would enjoy playing golf unless there was some pressure —unless I was a little nervous."

And he added to the pressure by calling the Open, "the No. 1 tournament. There is no great

MEN'S 35 TENNIS

Double Triumph At Mill Valley

Don Kierbow rallied twice in tie-breaking overtime Saturday for victories first in the singles and then with partner Whitney Reed in the doubles at the 13th annual National Men's 35 Hardcourt tennis championships.

The tournament was held under ideal weather conditions at the Mill Valley Tennis Club.

Kierbow, of Carmichael, Calif., edged Bob Perry of Los Angeles, 6-1, 7-6, and then, teamed with Reno's Whitney Reed to defeat Hugh Ditzler and defending singles champion Clif Mayne of Orinda, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3.

For the first time this year, prize money was offered in the tourney, and Kierbow took home a lion's share. He won $300 for his singles win, and half of $200 for the doubles victory. Perry, twice National Collegiate doubles champ for UCLA in the '50s, won $150, while the losing doubles team got $100.

In both victories, Kierbow saw an early lead vanish in the tie breaking games. He took a 4-0 lead against Perry, only to lose the next four points. But Kierbow took the ninth and deciding point. He had won the first set easily, 6-1.

The Kierbow-Reed team coasted to a 6-2, first set win in the doubles final, but suffered a collapse in the next set, as Mayne and Ditzler won five straight points for a 7-6 margin of victory. Actually, they won eight straight points — including the first three of the third set, but Kierbow and Reed recovered to win every point the rest of the way.

WINNING FORMULA

Home Runs, Vida Blue

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Home-run power and Vida Blue are keeping the Oakland Athletics comfortably atop the American League West.

The A's bashed five homers, four in the first game, Sunday to wind up with a split of their doubleheader with Milwaukee. Oakland took the opener 11-4 but then blew a four-run lead to lose.

Kansas City also split a pair so that kept the A's seven games ahead of the Royals.

Tonight the A's open a four-game series with the Minnesota Twins who should be a bit upset with themselves after dropping an 18-8 decision to the White Sox Sunday. Minnesota is 10-1-2 games off the pace set by the Athletics.

Blue goes after his 15th win tonight. He has lost twice. All 15 of his victories have been complete games. Blue will get six starts before the All Star break July 12 and if he wins all of them, he will become the first pitcher in history to notch 20 victories before mid-season.

Oakland hitters have swatted 80 balls out of the park so far this season to top the major leagues in the long-ball department. Reggie Jackson has hit one in each of his last three games to give him 15 for the year, one behind American League leader Tony Oliva of the Twins.

Jackson, Mike Epstein, Dave Duncan and Sal Bando clouted homers as the A's mounted a 16-hit attack against four Milwause pitchers in Sunday's opener. The victory went to reliever Jim Roland (1-1) who blanked the Twins for 3 2-3 innings after taking over for starter Chuck Dobson in the second inning.

In the second game, Diego Segui was cruising along on a five-hitter and a 4-0 lead in the seventh when Bando's throwing error opened the flood gates. Milwaukee scored five runs in the seventh, including a three-run homer by pinchhitter Andy

Stan Smith Wins At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., winner of the London grass court championship last Saturday, made an auspicious start in the Wimbledon tennis championships today when he routed Michel Leclercq of France, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, in a first round match.

Smith, seeded fourth and rated the best American hope for this two-week tournament, served with tremendous power and did not drop his service once. He used his lob to good effect, volleyed crisply and kept Leclercq constantly on the move.

Defending champion John Newcombe of Australia, who lost to Smith in the London final, also breezed into the second round by beating South Africa's Bob Hewitt, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5. Newcombe, the second seed, had the honor of playing the first match before a packed center court crowd of 14,000 fans.

Jim Connors of Belleville, Calif., who won the NCAA championships this past weekend at South Bend, Ind., failed to arrive for his opening match here and Australian Bob Carmichael advanced by default. Another easy winner was Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, who ousted Jun Kuki of Japan, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

Wimbldeon's traditional luck with the weather held—London having it's first day free of rain for nearly two weeks.

The head groundsman said: "The courts will probably play slow until such time they dry out, but the players should find them in good shape."

er in the day with the 14-court program opening in weak sunshine as a new era began at Wimbledon.

The world's oldest and most conservative tennis tournament, the All-England tennis championships, begins its 85th renewal by introducing the tie-breaker for the first time.

Wimbledon, to date, has resisted all attempts at sponsorship, but the club was forced to bow to the march of time by introducing the tie-breaker on popular demand by the circuit stars.

Marin Prep Stars Vs. Norcal's Best

Marin County's finest high school baseball players, who play Thursday night in the first Marin — Sonoma All Star game, will get some extraordinary practice tonight. They will play a pick-up game at Funston Field in San Francisco against the best preps in Northern California.

The practice game will begin at 7:30. It was arranged by Redwood High coach Al Endriss, who will co-coach the Northern California all stars in the California North-South game Friday night in Anaheim.

The Norcal team includes many stars who have been drafted this year by major league teams. Dave Judnick, Novato High ace pitcher drafted by the California Angels, leads the Marin team.

Marin Players Draw Blank In Belvedere

Dan Tierney, 15-year-old Redwood High School freshman, became the second Marin County tennis star in as many days to play in a doubles final in the Northern California Junior Tennis Championships at the Belvedere Tennis Club, and also the second to lose the championship match, as he and partner Eric Lee of San Francisco were defeated in straight sets yesterday.

John Hubbell of Los Altos and Rory Federico of San Jose put down Lee and Tierney, Marin County's last hope for a championship, 6-4, 6-4.

Mark Mitchell of Palo Alto became a double winner yesterday, first in the Boys 18 singles with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Ren Kern of Lafayette, then teamed with Chris Oates of Sacramento, for a 6-1, 6-1 win in doubles.

Another of Marin's champion ship hopes, Bee Kilgore of Tiburon, was defeated in a doubles final Saturday afternoon. Miss Kilgore and partner Nancy Zaro of Menlo Park dropped the Girls 16 doubles final to Joy Hahn of Davis and Joan Pennello of Carmichael, 6-2, 6-4.

Top seeded Marcie Louie of San Francisco won the Girls 18 singles championship over Barba a Downs of Alamo 7-5, 6-2.

Jerry Suyderhoud of San Anselmo, upset early in singles play, lasted until the semifinals of the doubles, where he was bested 1-6, 6-2, 6-2 by Mitchell and Oates Saturday.

In other closing-day results, Mark Jee clobbered Mitchell's brother, Matt, 6-0, 6-0 for the Boys 16 singles title. Mitchell, 14, had earlier taken the 14-year-old title, 6-0, 6-2.

The other final, Girls 16 singles, went to Marcy O'Keefe of Mountain View, with a 6-1, 7-5 win over Susan Zaro of Menlo Park.

Leach And Mates Trying For Upset

I-J Special Report

Ray Leach of Novato, a second-team All-American in 1970, leads the Brigham Young University golf team in quest of the 1971 NCAA team title this week at the Tucson National Golf Club.

Leach, a former Novato High School star, and Chip Garriss are both returning from the 1970 BYU team that finished third in the NCAA tourney.

The Cougars will be one of several teams out to upset favored Wake Forest, which has never won the NCAA title. The Deacons finished second to Houston last year, and with such stars as USGA Amateur Champion Lanny Wadkins and U.S. Open upstart challenger Jim Simons, they are considered the team to beat this year.

Other teams which should be in strong contention include Houston, Texas and Arizona State, which is led by All-American Howard Twitty.

Stroke play begins tomorrow with the huge field of 240 players starting off both the first and 10th tees at 6:30 in the morning. The field will be reduced after the first 36 holes to the low 15 teams and the low 60 individuals and ties. Eighteen holes will be played each day, tomorrow through Saturday.

West Cagers Coast To Win Over East

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The West, led by the floor play of Baltimore's Earl Monroe and the rebounding and defense of Phoenix's Connie Hawkins, opened up a 34-26 first-quarter advantage and coasted to a 111-100 win in the 4th annual Martin Luther King, benefit professional basketball game.

Hawkins pounded the boards and also picked up nine points and was picked as the game's most valuable athlete.

The ABA's Jimmie Jones of the Memphis Pros led six West players in double figures with 14 points. But the high-point man for the game was John Brisker of the ABA Pittsburgh Condors with 21 points.

The East squad, behind the gunning of Brisker and Rick Barry of the ABA New York Knicks and Roger Brown of the Indiana Pacers, closed the margin to 59-55 at the intermission. But the East managed just 18 points in the third quarter and the West breezed home, getting 22 to lead, 81-73, at the third stop.

For the East, Brown followed Brisker with 14. Barry tallied 12 and Indiana's Mel Daniels had 11.

Ken Zepponi slammed a double and two singles, and Don Asay had a triple, a double and four runs batted in to pace Drake.

ROUGH FINAL ROUND

Dejected Simons Ready For NCAA Golf Tourney

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI)—Jim Simons took off for Tucson, Ariz., today, happy that he produced the best performance by an amateur in the U.S. Open golf championship in the last decade—but dejected that he didn't win.

"I'm disappointed because I felt I had a chance," Simon said. "I let it get away the last nine holes."

Simons, whose 65 Saturday in the third round was the best round of the tournament, shot a 76 Sunday to finish with a 283 total, three strokes behind Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus, who meet in an 18-hole playoff today.

"I'm kind of drained, really," said Simons, 21, of Butler, Pa. "You lose all your adrenalin and everything. But I feel like every time I'm put under a lot of pressure that the next time it's going to be a lot easier for me. And I really couldn't experience much more pressure than I did here."

Today, Simons and Lanny Wadkins, his Wake Forest teammate, caught a jet for Tucson where they hope to lead Wake Forest to its first NCAA golf championship ever.

The tournament starts Wednesday and, after almost winning the U.S. Open, the NCAA event figures to be a letdown for Simons.

Even Nicklaus told him that. "I can remember when I was at Ohio State," Nicklaus told Simons in the lockerroom Sunday night, "that I had played in the British Amateur one week and then in the Open and then I went to the intercollegiates. I was still all charged up and beat Bert Yancey in the first round, 8-and-7. And then Steve Smith er tournament than the U.S. Open."

Nicklaus, asked if he found it disconcerting to play with the talkative Trevino, said, "I enjoy playing with Lee."

"He's a good, solid player and I find it easy to play with him. He makes it easy," Nicklaus said. "He respects other players.

Nicklaus said he had never been in an 18-hole playoff with Trevino but he didn't expect play "would be any differet" in today's faceoff with his opponent, who has won one U.S. Open.

That was in 1968 when Trevino tied Nicklaus' previous year 275 record and won by four strokes over a guy named Nicklaus.

blew me out, 5-and-4. I just got blown right out."

Nothing like that figures to happen to Simons this week because the NCAA championship no longer is a match play event and, also because of what it means to him.

"We've never won this but we were fifth, third, second and second the last four years," Simons said. "We want this one so badly I'm sure I'll be able to get ready for it."

"I'm not as down about losing here as I was after the British Amateur," said Simons, who lost 3-and-2 to Steve Melnyk in the finals of that tournament.

"I know I can beat Melnyk. I may not beat him every time or even beat him 50 per cent of the time but I know I can. This is something different."

What happened to Simons Sunday was that he couldn't make a putt for a birdie and he got into trouble with the thick rough. On the second hole, trying to hit a four-wood out of the rough, he dubbed a shot 15 yards. That was the first of four bogies, and, at 18, Simons suffered a double-bogey six that left

"I'm sure playing here has helped my confidence," Simons said. "The four days of heavy competition tends to weary your mind. It got to me, I guess."

NCAA TRACK

Marty Liquori Is On Schedule

SEATTLE (UPI)—Marty Liquori is right on schedule.

The good-looking Villanova senior, now generally regarded as the world's greatest miler, won his third consecutive NCAA title Saturday and now shoots for the year's AAU title as well.

That would be at Eugene, Ore., this weekend when the NCAA heroes struggle with the post-grads and club stars for spots on the American team which will compete against the Russians and a world team, and for berths on the Pan American games squad.

"Right along I've had it in mind to win the NCAA title and the AAU title, too, if I can," Liquori said after taking the collegiate mile record to 3:57.6. "Then I'd like to compete against the Russians, go to a meet in Milan, Italy, and then on to Columbia for the Pan-Am games."

Liquori has won six IC4A mile titles and the NCAA outdoor mile title three times in addition to a flock of other championships and a big victory over world record holder Jim Rhun in the freedom games last month.

Liquori says there is nothing he would like more than to meet Ryun again and he may get his wish this week. Ryun is anxious to make amends for his loss to Liquori last month but he is having health problems and probably won't decide about the AAU championships until the last possible minute.

"If I'm healthy I'll run," Ryun said. "I'll try a couple of workouts away from the Willamette Valley (Ore.) and see what happens. If I haven't lost any of my speed I'll probably run."

Liquori's mile performance was one of eight meet records set at the NCAA championships. The others were in the three mile (Steve Prefonteine of Oregon in 13-20.1), six mile (Garry Bjorklund of Minnesota in 27:43.1) decathlon (Ray Hupp of Ohio State with 7,456 points), hammer (Jacques Accambray of Kent State in 227-10), steeplechase (Sid Sink of Bowling Green in 8:30.9), the long jump (Reynaldo Brown of Cal Poly SLO with 7-3), and the triple jump (Denny Rogers of UCLA 53-7 1-2).

Mihinder Gill of Cal Poly SLO won the triple jump with a wind aided leap of 54-8 1-2 and Barry McClure of middle Tennessee was second, also with a wind-aided 53-8 3-4. Naturally, their marks do not count as records.

UCLA, with its depth, won the team title for the first time in five years. The Bruins piled up 52 points, 11 more than cross-town rival USC.

UCLA victories came only in the mile relay (3:04.4.) and the 440 dash (John Smith in 45.3). But the Bruins picked up eight points from Francoise Tracanelli, who was second in the pole vault, and 10 big points from Denny Rogers and Jim Butts, who finished third and fourth, respectively, in the triple jump.

It's been a big year for the Bruins, who earlier won the basketball, volleyball and tennis titles.

Southern Cal Drivers Win At Laguna Seca

MONTEREY (UPI) — Racecar drivers from Southern California dominated the national sprint sports car races Sunday at Laguna Seca by taking four of five events.

Winning drivers were Jay Hills of Los Angeles who averaged 92.079 miles an hour in a Chevy powered McLaren; Don Devondorf of Los Angeles who averaged 83.391 mph in a Triumph TR-6; Larry Wilson of Sacramento in an event for Volkswagen-powered Formula Vee single-seaters' Bert Ohlander of Manhattan Beach, who drove in a highly modified Porsche, and Bob Williams of Santa Monica who won the 24-lap race for Formula Ford cars.

Bill Hoyer of Montesano, Wash., lost control of his car on the second lap of the Volkswagen-powered Formula Vee race and it flipped end over end before catching fire.

Lib Gets Support In San Mateo

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI)—The student council at Skyline College has passed a resolution saying that excluding women from varsity sports is "deplorable."

The junior college's president, Phil Garlington, agrees, but he doesn't want young women competing in football and wrestling. The matter came up when a public speaking class got a thousand students to sign a petition against "male chauvinism" in sports.

White Sox Erupt For 18-8 Victory

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The White Sox, notorious in recent years for their lack of power, erupted for 18 runs Sunday to rout the Minnesota Twins 18-8.

Walt Williams, who went 4-for-5, crashed a three-run homer to highlight a nine-run sixth inning after Minnesota had taken a 4-0 lead and Rick Reichardt's grand slam homer capped a six-run seventh. The White Sox added a single run in the eighth and two more in the ninth to humiliate the Twins.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore routed New York 10-4, Milwaukee beat Oakland 7-4, after losing the opener 11-4, Kansas City beat California 5-1 before bowing 8-4 in the second game, Boston edged Washington 4-3 and Cleveland shaded Detroit 7-6. The second game of the Cleveland-Detroit doubleheader was suspended after seven innings because of a power failure with the Indians leading 7-6.

Mark Belanger had a two-run single and Dave Johnson stole home to highlight a five-run first inning in the Orioles' rout of New York. The Yankees cut the lead to 5-4 in the seventh before Baltimore put the game out of reach on Don Buford's run-producing double and a two-run single by Brooks Robinson.

Dave McNally pitched seven innings to record his 11th victory against four losses.

Tom Murphy's two-run double in the fourth and Jim Spencer's two-run single an inning later helped the Angels beat Kansas City in the second game. Bruce Dal Canton pitched a five-hitter before needing relief in the ninth and had a two-run single as the Royals won the opener to keep pace with front-running Oakland in the AL West.

John Kennedy's two-out single in the ninth lifted Boston past the Senators. Washington built a 3-0 lead before the Red Sox tied the game in the seventh on Billy Conigliaro's two-run double and Phil Gagliano's two-out pinch single.

Pete Broberg, the No. 1 choice in last week's free agent draft, made his major league debut for the Senators, allowing only three hits and striking out seven before faltering in the seventh.

Chuck Hinton's 11th inning homer lifted Cleveland over Detroit in the first game of their scheduled doubleheader. Roy Foster had a pair of homers and drove in four runs for the Indians.

The second game was suspended when a bank of lights behind home plate went out. Cleveland's Chris Chambliss singled in the go-ahead run in the seventh before Detroit Manager Billy Martin pointed out that the lights were out. The game will be completed on Sept. 28.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Stargell Paces Buc Sweep

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Willie Stargell may be the major league' No. 1 slugger but he's still only No. 3 in the hearts of the nation's baseball fans.

Stargell collected three hits including two homers—one a grand slam—Sunday to pace the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-1 and 7-3 doubleheader sweep over the Montreal Expos and increase their National League East lead to 3 1-2 games.

The two homers and five RBIs boosted Stargell's major league leading totals to 24 homers and 65 RBIs. But despite the records, Stargell is third in the National League All-Star outfield balloting with 143,121 votes. He trails two of the fans' favorites—Willie Mays (284,800) and Hank Aaron (281,644).

Stargell still seems to have a starting berth all but nailed down since he has a healthy lead over fourth place Lou Brock, who has 118,194 votes. But Stargell, who hasn't appeared in an All-Star game since 1966, is taking nothing for granted.

"I was leading the league in 1969 (he was actually third at .349 on July 4, 1969 but wasn't leading in homers or RBIs) and I didn't even make the All-Star team, let alone start. So I have no reason to believe I will be there this year." But Stargell, who's batting .309, seems to be a good bet to start in Detroit on July 13.

His first homer Sunday was a 430-foot shot into the upper Deck that was the longest shot yet hit in Three Rivers Stadium. His second game homer was a grand slam in the seventh on the first pitch by Mike Marshall that snapped a 1-1 tie.

Montreal manager Gene Mauch said, "I don't know if he's the strongest player in the league but I do know he has the fastest bat around. That's what makes him such a big threat."

Stargell said, "I've had two other years (1964 and 1965) when I've had great starts like this but I had to have knee operations both times. I just hope my legs hold out this time."

In other games, St. Louis downed Chicago 5-4, Houston edged Los Angeles 9-7, San Francisco swept a doubleheader from San Diego 6-2 and 2-0, New York beat Philadelphia 7-6 but lost the second game 9-7 in 11 innings and Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from Atlanta, 5-4 and 2-0.

Johnny Bench singled home Jimmy Stewart in the ninth inning to give Cincinnati the victory over Atlanta in the first game and Don Gullett and Clay Carroll teamed up on a five-hit shutout in the second game. Gullett, 8-2, went 7 1-3 innings and Carroll finished up.

New York and Philadelphia had a see-saw doubleheader. The Mets blew a 4-0 lead in the first game, fell behind 6-4, but won it when Duffy Dyer's two-run single climaxed a three-run ninth inning. The Mets blew a 5-1 lead in the second game as this time the Phils tied it and won it in the 11th on Deron Johnson's grand slam off Ron Taylor.

Joe Torre, taking over the National League batting lead with a .358 average, collected four straight hits to pace St. Louis past Chicago. It was only St. Louis' second win the the last 13 games.

Doug Rader collected four hits to drive in three runs as as Houston downed Los Angeles. The Astros scored five unearned runs in the third when Bobby Valentine and Bill Buckner committed costly errors.

Softballers Split Doubleheader

Suburban Auto of San Rafael closed out the Golden Gate Travel League Softball season yesterday with a doubleheader split with Hayward, placing Suburban fourth on the year in the American Division of the League.

Phil Gambucci singled in the only run in a 4-1 loss in the opener, but Bill Baxter went 3 for 3 including a home run, and Nolan Wilson also picked up three hits, as Suburban came back to take the nightcap 7-5.

HONG KONG (UPI)—Most of the industries in Hong Kong are locally financed. But a growing number of foreign firms are investing here, with the United States, Japan, Britain, Australia and Switzerland heading the list.

New Industry In Revolutionary Rice Process

BEVERLY HILLS (BW) — Continental Energy Corp. has agreed to develop a new large-scale industry in low cost conversion of rice hulls and other industrial and agricultural wastes into carbon black and related chemicals.

Agreements signed recently provide royalties up to $38 million to Edward Koppelman, Los Angeles inventor of the revolutionary process, out of net profits.

The first Koppelman process plant in the Sacramento area is expected to go onstream early in 1972.

The new industry will produce valuable chemicals from rice hulls which must now be buried by mills or disposed of in open pits at considerable expense.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Defense Cut Hurt Planning Research

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I've recently inherited several hundred shares of Planning Research Corp. Can you tell me something about the company? C.O.

A. Planning Research offers systems analysis and develops computer programs and systems. In fiscal 1970 revenues from commercial sources amounted to 48 per cent, while government defense agencies absorbed 26 per cent. Just one year previous the latter category accounted for 36 per cent of revenues. While increasing emphasis has been placed on non-government business, the drop in defense spending has not been offset by a similar increase from other sources. Thus in the first nine months through March, gross revenues dropped 9 per cent. However, careful cost control resulted in improved profit margins and net income declined only 1:5 per cent. For the full year, earnings of 65 cents a share appear feasible.

Planning's International Reservations Corporation is now by far the largest computer-based reservations system in the world; with 4,700 hotels and motels in the U.S. now in its system, plus over 1,300 other installations in Europe. New projects for the diversified systems engineering concern include development of a master plan for Alaska's Anchorage International Airport, comprehensive study of the engineering and construction required by Southern California Edison i the next decade, and a massive transportation project for Washington, D.C. Shares should be held for their long-range growth potential.

Northgate Industrial Park Set For New Spanish-Style Building

By September Northgate Industrial Park should have another impressive new building completed near the entrance of the park — this one at 4330 Redwood Highway.

It will cover 70,000 square feet and be in a Spanish design with large patios, extensive lawns and fountains and is being constructed by builder Johnny Ribeiro, who purchased the land through William W. Hoey and Co.

Hoey will also handle the leasing and move into larger offices here from his present location at 45 Mitchell Boulevard when the building is completed. It will be called La Plaza Offices.

THERE IS A NEW OWNER and a somewhat different name for the Kentfield Service Center at 1001 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Kentfield at the corner of College Avenue.

Now known as the Kentfield 66 Service Center, it has been taken over by Michael A. Piazza of San Francisco. This is his first service station but he has been in automotive mechanical work for many years and will continue this in conjunction with his gasoline and lubrication service.

Former owner A. J. Acevedo is concentrating on his other stations in San Francisco.

THE SAN RAFAEL OFFICE of Ira W. Coburn Builder, Inc. has been moved to larger quarters at 59 Larkspur Street from 186 Woodland Avenue where it has been since it was opened in the county 15 years ago. Yard and offices are now at one location.

Vice president Martin Moder, who had been with the company 20 years, will continue as local manager. Telephone number will remain the same. Engaged in construction and special services, Coburn has its main office in San Francisco and has been in business since 1894.

ACQUISITION of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association by Financial Corp. of Santa Barbara will represent the first move by the latter into the Bay Area. It is the parent company of Santa Barbara Savings and Loan Association and San Luis Obispo Savings and Loan which have seven full-service branch offices and two mobile branches, with consolidated assets of $307 million.

Financial Corp. shares are traded on the American and Pacific Coast Stock Exchanges. Ross Valley has one branch in San Leandro and may open a third office in the Bon Air Shopping Center, Greenbrae when this is expanded to a regional center.

JOHN B. NEUENBERG of Greenbrae has been promoted to regional secretary, ocean marine, at Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, San Francisco. He joined the organization in 1939 as an auto casualty underwriter. After serving in World War II he became a cargo underwriter and was named manager of the ocean cargo department in 1960.

MISS ROBERTA J. THURMOND of Novato has been promoted to assistant operations officer in Wells Fargo Bank's Union Trust Office. She has worked at this office since joining the bank in 1951.

MRS. ZDENKA I. PISAREV of Mill Valley has been promoted to assistant trust officer in the San Francisco trust securities department of United California Bank. She joined the bank in 1959 as a teller and has worked in several departments since then.

ROBERT N. THALMAN of San Rafael, vice president in charge of First Western Bank's electronic data processing in Northern California is celebrating his 10th anniversary with the bank. He was security analyst for a New York brokerage firm before joining First Western.

THE RECENTLY OPENED Rennwagen at 670 Irwin Street, San Rafael — a replacement parts business for Porsche and Volkswagen cars — has expanded its operations to include both retail and wholesale sales.

Stock Prices Fall Again On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices were sharply lower around noon today but above hour-earlier levels. Turnover was active.

Shortly before noon the Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 6.86 to 882.30. It had been down more than 8 points at 11 a.m. off 1,491 issues on the tape, declines outpaced advances by a ratio of almost 4-to-1, 967 to 265.

Many analysts observed that the easier tone was a carryover of the heavy selling Friday, when the Dow slid more than 17 points. The major depressant was a report from the mutual fund industry showing redemptions last month surpassing sales for the first time in 17 years statistics have been kept and perhaps in the 30-year history of the industry.

Still, one analyst insisted that the current movement of the market indicated "a very technical" reaction rather than "a fundamental one."

"All this easier tone of the past month suggests that the market is in an anticipatory stage," Philip Clark, general partner of Burnham & Co. said.

Systron-Donner Wins Contract For Missiles

CONCORD (BW) — Systron-Donner Corp. has received a contract for the first production guidance and control components for the Lance missile from Michigan Division of the Vought Missiles & Space Co.

This highly mobile battlefield missile, which will replace the Army's Sergeant and Honest John missile systems, has been under development for some time.

Systron has been active in development of various components of the simplified guidance system since the initial study phase contract was awarded.

Livestock Show Winners Listed

The 22nd annual West Marin Junior Livestock Show drew thousands of persons during the weekend to Point Reyes Station.

Crowd estimates ranged as high as 6,000 persons viewing yesterday's parade which climaxed the two-day event, and the West Marin Lions Club, sponsor of the show, reported feeding chicken to more than 2,500 at the luncheon at the barbecue preceding the parade.

Head-On Crash Injures Three

Three persons were injured in a two-car accident at 11:15 p.m. yesterday on Roblar Road, north of Petaluma.

Sheila Williams, 38, of 252 Mt. Shasta Drive, San Rafael, and her son, Christopher, 6, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts. The other driver, Robert Thompson, 41, of Sebastopol, was treated at Community Hospital of Sonoma County for arm cuts.

The California Highway Patrol said the car driven by Thompson crossed over the center line and struck the other car head-on.

Drugs Suspects Are Arrested

Two Petaluma youths were arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs, narcotics paraphernalia and being under the influence of drugs.

Wesley Ralph Reid, 14, of 529 Reynolds Drive, and Robert Richard Brown, 13, of 1275 McGregor Drive, were booked into Sonoma County Juvenile Hall.

Police said they were found crawling on the sidewalk and street in the 800 block of Petaluma Boulevard north at 8:30 p.m. yesterday. Officers said they had red capsules, foil packets of a brown substance and brass pipes in their possession.

Cabinet Head Order: Hire More Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Under prodding from President Nixon, Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin has ordered his aides to put more women in top jobs.

At the moment, officials said, only four out of 289 top jobs in the agency are held by women.

In addition to the job order, meanwhile, Hardin told aides in a formal directive to put "well qualified" women in one out of every four future vacancies on advisory boards and commissions.

A spokesman said the one-out-of-four directive will be taken as a goal, but it may be impossible to find women for some specialized advisory groups.

However, officials added, they are already moving to comply with Nixon's April 21 memorandum which stated the administration "must now clearly demonstrate our recognition of the equality of women by making greater use of their skills in high-level positions."

One key target is the department's collection of 289 jobs in civil service grade GS 16 and up. The GS 16 positions carry a starting salary of $28,129 annually.

A department spokesman said 24 openings in such jobs were expected between now and the end of the year. At least two of the high-pay posts will be filled with women, including one prospective appointee whose name has already been sent for approval to the Civil Service Commission.

Special Session

The board of directors of the Kentfield Fire Department will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the fire station to check on an insurance policy and complete the 1971-72 budget.
